Crippling Blow Dealt Enemy in Rangoon Section

Allies Victorious in Two Major Battles in Burma

Only One British and One American Pilot Fail To Return

By DANIEL DE LUCE

RANGOON, BURMA, Jan. 23. (AP)—American and British fighter pilots, veterans all, knocked down twenty-one of sixty Japanese raiders over the Rangoon area today, putting a crimp in Japanese aspirations to strike a crippling blow from the rear in support of their operations in the South Burma pander.

The surviving raiders turned tail and fled and their rout, it was believed here, would strongly influence the enemy offensive, directed at present against picturesque port of Moulmein, but which is intended ultimately to gain this terminus of the Burma Road.

It was considered timely that the upper air defense here against greatest odds occurred while the British in the pander were falling back from the mountains to within twenty-six miles of Moulmein before a large mixed force of Japanese and Thai invaders.

There were two main battles over Rangoon today. In the first seven Japanese planes were downed; in the second, fourteen crashed.

American Pilot Missing

One American pilot, back in action again after recovering from a wound sustained in an air battle Jan. 4, failed to return from today's operation and one RAF pilot was lost. The Briton was the first to challenge the raiders and was seen single-handedly attacking twenty-four enemy craft.

The day's ace was a former navy flier, Pete, once with the United States aircraft carrier Ranger, whose home is Pensacola, Fla. He sent three enemy craft crashing to earth from the first wave of attackers, refueled, took off again and shot down two in the second wave.

Then there was Jack, a member of the American volunteer group, from Scarsdale, N. Y., who raised his score to date to eight by setting fire to one Japanese plane and shooting the wing off another. Then he ate a hearty late luncheon.

One RAF pilot knocked out a Japanese fighter and himself made a forced landing 100 yards from the wreckage of his victim.

British Praises Yanks

"What your Yanks and our boys are doing today beats almost anything in the history of the battle of Britain," a veteran RAF officer commented. "Give them better and better planes and the Japs will get sicker and sicker of this war."

As one participating American put it: "The paddy fields east of Rangoon looked like they had a banner in each one. Those Japs crashed far and wide."

An official military commentator said withdrawing imperials in the pander were in no sense beaten. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Japanese Threaten To Turn Left Flank of British near Singapore

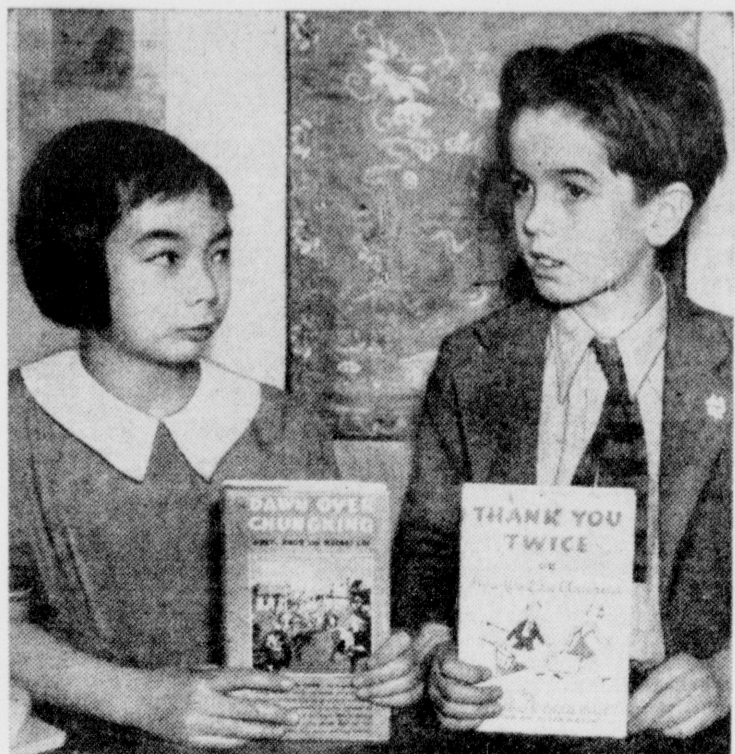

SINGAPORE, Jan. 23. (AP)—Japanese troops threatened tonight to turn the British left flank at Batu Pahat, sixty miles northwest of Singapore, but elsewhere across the Peninsula the outnumbered imperials were reported holding out doggedly against increasingly heavy blows.

The British command acknowledged evidence of Japanese penetration in the Batu Pahat sector, the west coastal anchor of a line stretching across Johore state through Chuah in the center to Mersing on the east coast.

These infiltrations coincided with reinforced Japanese frontal assaults in an effort to force the withdrawal of defense units at Bukit Payong, a hill some nine miles north of Batu Pahat.

REDS MAKE LONGEST ADVANCE OF THE WAR

Russian Drive Menaces German Position East of White Russia, 17,000 Nazis Killed

By ROBERT MAGIDOFF

MOSCOW, Jan. 23. (AP)—Red armies again forward on the north-central front for the greatest advance yet of their mighty offensive are within 120 miles of the Latvian border in an enveloping drive which threatens the entire German position east of White Russia, the supreme Soviet command announced officially tonight.

Screened by a blinding snowstorm, the advancing Soviet forces pounced upon the unsuspecting Germans, killed 17,000 of the foe, imprisoned some hundreds of others, and captured 2,000 towns and villages in this stunning sixty-five-mile advance, a special communique said.

The spearhead of the Soviet drive has reached Kholm, which is on the Lovat river west of a north-south line running through Smolensk, the main headquarters of Adolf Hitler's central front armies. This thrust cut the vital Rzhnev-Veliki Luki rail line.

Kholm was reported reliably to have been the northern pivot of the winter line which German Field Marshal Fedor von Bock originally suggested that the Nazis should try to hold.

Hold Part of Rail Line

The Soviet drive swept the Germans from the snow-drifted Valdai hills, whose lakes form the headwaters of the Volga, and regained control of half of the 300-mile long rail line connecting the main Moscow-Leningrad and Moscow-Vitebsk railroad.

Only a Starter In FDR's Plans To Defeat Axis

Will Provide 23,000 Combat Planes and 10,000 Trainers

Appropriation Is Largest Single Outlay Proposed in Congress

By HAL COOPER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—Less than four hours after it received the request from its Appropriations committee, the House voted unanimously today to pour another $12,258,724,474 into the nation's drive to seize aerial mastery over the foe of the United States wherever they may be found.

The appropriation, which now goes to the Senate, will pay mainly for 23,000 combat planes and 10,000 trainers, only a starter toward President Roosevelt's goal of 60,000 United States-built flying warcraft in 1942 and 125,000 in 1943.

Sets New Record

It is the largest single outlay for military purposes ever proposed in Congress, but only a small part of the $56,000,000,000 of war expenditures which President Roosevelt, in his budget message at the start of the session, outlined for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Provided are $933,000,000 to expand aircraft plants, build bomber assembly plants and construct facilities for production of explosives and incendiary materials; $7,144,058,340 for complete planes; $1,547,000 for armament, cannon, ammunition, bombs for spare engines and parts, and approximately $1,000,000,000 for signal corps and chemical warfare service supplies.

Plans Knockout Blow

With this money the United States will "build toward our offensive knockout blow," the appropriations committee was told by Lieutenant General H. H. Arnold, deputy chief of staff for air.

The vote of 389 to 0 by which the House sent the bill on its way toward final enactment was a foregone conclusion. Except for inclusion in the bill of $30,000,000 to build another dam in the Tennessee Valley Authority system, the vote could have come in the first hour.

But after a bitter exchange, largely along partisan lines, the bill went through bearing the separate appropriation to build Douglas dam, on the French Broad river near Dandridge, Tenn.

Chairman Cannon (D-Mo.) of the Appropriations committee brought the bill before the House with a solemn assertion that "the whole issue of this war depends on taking and holding control of the air in every theater of the war." (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

Man, 2 Married Women, Murdered in Baltimore

Police Make One Arrest in Connection with Killing of Three in Suburb with Gun and Knife

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23. (AP)—Baltimore county police late tonight announced they had taken a man into custody in their investigation of the brutal slaying of three persons—a musician and two married sisters—on lonely Johnnycake road in suburban Baltimore.

Detectives Earl Smith and Thomas Callahan declined to say whether the man was held as a suspect, or for questioning. The bodies, two with gun shot wounds and other with multiple stab wounds and a bullet wound, were found early today lying alongside the road.

Police said they had been definitely identified as:

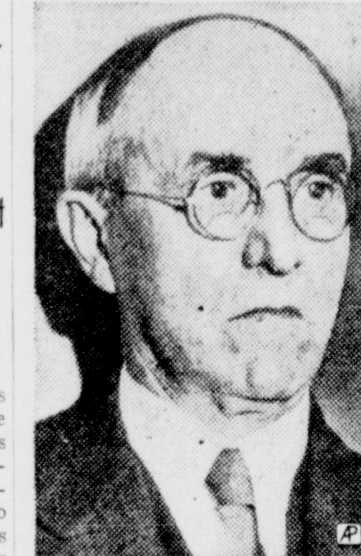

Mrs. Helen Johnson, 19, shot through the left hand and right shoulder.

Her sister, Mrs. Irene Carter, 32, mother of four children by a former marriage, shot in the forehead, stabbed seven times in the chest, and slashed about the neck and head.

Murray Rebuked By John L. Lewis For Labor Views

Rift Between Former President and Present Head of CIO Widens

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—A rift between John L. Lewis and the present leadership of the CIO widened tonight when Lewis tartly declined to present his views on labor peace to the CIO executive board at a meeting in New York tomorrow.

"I will not attend your board meeting," Lewis said flatly in a letter to Philip Murray, who succeeded him as president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Lewis, who is president of the United Mine Workers, one of the most potent CIO unions, suggested last week-end that the warring AFL and CIO resume negotiations looking toward mending their long breach.

These negotiations were broken off in April 1939, subject to call by Lewis, who is chairman of the CIO negotiating committee. Murray, the present CIO leader, last Monday issued a none-too-cordial invitation to Lewis to appear in person before the CIO board and elaborate on his ideas for peace.

Murray Sarcastic

Murray, indicating resentment at Lewis' action in proposing peace meetings without consulting him, said in a letter to Lewis that any arrangements in behalf of the CIO with reference to AFL unity would (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

One-Way Trips Promised Subs Sent by Nazis

Some of U-Boats Will Never Return, Navy Spokesman Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—A navy spokesman said today that "some" of the enemy submarines which have been and are still operating off the United States Atlantic coast would never return home.

Whether these subs have been captured or destroyed this spokesman did not make clear. At the same time this spokesman urged the public to give out no information about specific destruction or capturing of undersea craft, declaring that by thus helping to make psychological warfare on the enemy, "every American can make his contribution to the navy's world wide effort to eliminate the enemy submarine menace."

Submarines under Control

The spokesman declared that "two way traffic is satisfactorily on the decline" as far as submarines invading United States territorial waters are concerned.

"But there will be no information given out about the fate of the enemy excursionists who don't get home, until that information is no longer of aid and comfort to the enemy."

The navy statement said: "Official Statement

"There are many rumors and unofficial reports about the capture or destruction of enemy submarines.

"Some of the recent visitors to our territorial waters will never enjoy the return portion of their voyage. Furthermore, the percentage of one-way traffic is increasing while that of two-way traffic is satisfactorily on the decline."

"But there will be no information given out about the fate of the enemy submarine excursionists who don't get home, until that information is no longer of aid and comfort to the enemy."

Reinforced Axis Armies Advance 100 Miles and Retake Base at Agedabia

SURPRISES BRITISH

London and Cairo Jarred by Sensational Italian and German Drive Similar to Former Victory

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press War Analyst

A startling and unexpected British set-back in Libya headlines the war news. It makes North Africa an unknown quantity in both Allied and Axis strategy.

Resurgent German tank units under heavy air protection have stabbed eastward again nearly 100 miles to retake Agedabia, offensive advance base of the British. The news obviously jarred London spokesmen. There and in Cairo the battered axis forces under Nazi General Rommel had been represented as whittled down to rearguard defense size.

Axis Leaps Eastward

Yet they have leaped eastward and according to Cairo accounts, they have encountered only British "light forces." A similar attack in the same region last year precipitated a retreat that threw the British almost out of Libya.

There was no mystery about that. In a futile effort to save Greece from Axis conquest, Britain left little more than a token force to hold Libyan gains and sealed down her air and sea blockade in the Mediterranean. The British gambled with Libya and lost.

That they have similarly gambled with Singapore, even Australia, and already lost Hongkong, is the charge raised against Prime Minister Churchill by his parliamentary critics. The loss of Agedabia, unless it can be explained on high strategy grounds, will add to the heat of the London war debate.

It is possible the Libyan retreat can be so explained. The British still hold Bengasi and the Libyan hump, which are important as air bases.

Seek Aid of Allies

Pressure upon both London and Washington for effective allied reinforcement of Pacific and China sea bastions has been increasingly heavy as British back-stepping down the Malaya peninsula went on unchecked. The only allied bright spots in the far Pacific are General MacArthur's stand on Luzon, and American, Dutch and Chinese counter blows by air and sea.

British retreat in Libya to yield Agedabia back to the Axis could mark a strategic move. The main British army in Libya obviously must be standing somewhere west of Bengasi and the Libyan hump, possibly with new orders. That is what deployment of only "light" British forces about Agedabia means, it would be significant.

The explanation must be the transfer of empire forces from the near east and Mediterranean to bolster allied defense resources in the South Pacific battle zone. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

Lowe Believes Americans Will Fight in Four Corners of World

By RUTH COWAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—Brig. Gen. Frank E. Lowe, assistant to the army chief of staff, said today that "if we don't fight in all four corners of the world, I would be surprised."

He interpolated the remark into his prepared address to the national defense forum, sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

He also gave as his opinion that attrition will decide the war. By summer or fall of next year, he continued, there ought to be evidence that would allow a reasonable, intelligent estimate of the situation.

Hits "Whispering Campaigns"

In his address Gen. Lowe, urged the women to be on guard against "whispering campaigns." He stressed that American soldiers will not be sent out to fight until thoroughly equipped and trained, and "let no one tell you differently."

During the questioning period a woman asked if the American Red Cross sold the socks, sweaters and other articles made by volunteers. Mrs. Edward MacCauley, liaison officer between the American Red Cross and the Office of Civilian Defense, in emphatically answering "no," described this a type of question as part of a "whispering campaign."

Deplores Quarrels

Another speaker, Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation, said that all women who engage in war work can't be "general" and wear snappy uniforms. She said that quarrels for places of leadership were threatening to hamper the war program seriously.

Asserting that men were guilty of the same faults, she recalled by way of warning that Hitler had often said that quarrels among this nation's heterogeneous masses of people would make it easy to conquer.

Dutch Bombers Attack Squadron Of Jap Warships

Score Twelve Direct Hits on Eight Ships in Narrow Strait

By HENRY HOOGEENDOORN
BATAVIA, N.E.I. Jan. 23 (AP)—Heavy bombers and dive-bombing fighters of the Dutch East Indies air force caught a squadron of Japanese warships and a train of invasion transports in the strait of Macassar today and left them crippled with twelve direct hits on eight ships.

Making superb use of their American-built aircraft in the narrow waters which the Japanese invaders of the Dutch East Indies now are endeavoring to penetrate, the Dutch flying fleet came back to their base without a single casualty of their own. This was their score, announced in a special communique:

Here's Dutch Score

One large warship, perhaps a battleship, directly hit by 300 kilogram (660 pound) bombs.

One heavy cruiser, one light cruiser and one large transport struck by bombs of the same caliber.

A destroyer, two large transports and one smaller ship, dive-bombed by fighters and hit with 80-kilo (175 pound) bombs.

The strait in which the attack was delivered lies between the islands of Borneo and Celebes, upper defenses of the Indies and both of them invaded in part by Japanese forces.

Already the enemy is in possession of the oil island of Tarakan off the northeast coast of Borneo and the Minahassa peninsula, narrow upper arm of Celebes. The ships which were bombed were obviously steaming southward from those bases for further landings to the south.

Oil Wells Fired

It was in timely anticipation of just such a move that the Dutch yesterday put the torch to the oil wells and refineries of Balikpapan. Borneo east coast port more than 300 miles south of Tarakan.

This today's aerial foray (possibly carried out from secret inland airports which the Dutch are reputed to have established in the jungles of Borneo) was important in at least delaying or weakening further landing attempts.

On the debit side of the ledger the N.E.I. command today reported two new raids on Belawan, Deli, the port for Medan, Sumatra, by Japanese bombers which dropped many bombs, damaging some sheds and ships and wounding sixteen persons. An Aneta agency correspondent in Medan reported most casualties resulted from a near miss on an air raid shelter trench.

Sabang, on We island five miles off the northern tip of Sumatra, was bombed again, but two ships which were the targets were unhurt. The airport at Palembang, South Sumatra, was raided by twenty-seven Japanese fighters and two persons were wounded.

Only a Starter

If the United States had possessed enough airplanes in December, he said, "the enemy never could have landed in the Philippines; the British wouldn't have lost two capital ships; Singapore wouldn't be fighting a last desperate battle, and the problem of defending Australia would be disposed of."

Main purpose of the huge fund proposed today he explained, was to permit continued acceleration of airplane output. "Unless this money is provided," he warned, "we will reach a peak of production in August."

Taber Backs Cannon

Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.), the ranking minority member of the committee, joined Cannon with this plea: "The critical situation our forces in the Far East are facing is sufficient argument for passage of funds to implement our war activity to any immediate extent."

The committee's record of its hearings closely edited by its members and the war department to prevent disclosure of important military information, showed that Arnold said the United States must act quickly to "counteract" the time advantage of the enemy.

Arnold said he did not know how many of the planes might be sent to other nations under the Lease Lend act explaining "we have to send them where they will do the most good."

He challenged a report by the Senate Defense Investigating committee which said that few United States planes were as good as those of the Axis.

Reinforced

There has been a recent hint from Japanese sources of British capital ships in the Indian ocean and Malacca strait.

The Axis strategy which drew Japan into the battle in December has definitely scored if it has forced the British to halt their Libyan offensive in order to save Singapore. The Netherlands Indies and Australia.

In New York City it has been estimated that more than 2,000,000 persons eat at least one daily meal away from home.

Dutch Submarine Crewman Spends 35 Hours in Shark Infested Water

Editor's note: When The Netherlands East Indies went to war with Japan, a Dutch submarine was poking through the Gulf of Siam, keeping periscope watch on four Japanese troops transports heading for the British Malaya shore.

When word was received that the war was on the submarine fired its torpedoes. The four Japanese ships went down with about 4,000 soldiers. Days later the submarine struck a mine. There was one survivor. The following is the story of his escape, issued through Aneta, official Netherlands news agency.

By QUARTERMASTER C. DE WOLF

BATAVIA, Jan. 23 (Aneta to AP)—It's still hard to believe that I survived that experience in which all my mates lost their lives.

The night it happened we were cruising on the surface to investigate a light on the horizon. There were six of us in the conning tower, our captain, myself and four other officers.

Suddenly a blast seemed to lift the sub out of the water and all six of us were hurled into the water. Stunned by the explosion but fortunately uninjured, I began to swim around looking for the others. The captain had vanished, but the other four officers were still with me and able to swim.

Fearful Attack by Sharks

All of us were driven on by the frightening knowledge that all the dark water around us was infested by sharks. We hid ourselves of clothes. After twelve hours three of the men had to give up exhausted and sank below the waves. The other officer and I were desperately tired. A few hours later he, too, was swallowed up by the sea.

I had now been in the water eighteen hours and no land was in sight. My arms ached and I was desperately drowsy, but somehow— I can't explain such things — I kept going. I swam throughout the night and the next day. Apparently the sharks were busy elsewhere.

Finally I saw land. As I got close to the shore a wave threw me onto the rocky beach where a rock cut me badly in the back. I had been in the water thirty-five hours as far as I could figure.

For several hours I must have lain half conscious, but eventually I was able to stumble forward.

Rescued by Natives

Some natives gave me an old shirt to wear and led me to a native canoe. The owner of this fragile craft took me to a small native settlement.

After getting something to eat I felt a little stronger and asked some natives to take me to a European settlement. We started afoul. I had no shoes and soon my feet began to bleed so badly that I was almost impossible to go on. The soles of my feet were torn to pieces and the pain was so frightful I had to sit down every few steps.

We finally reached a small clearing in the jungle where I lay down. I apparently dozed off because when I struggled to my feet I was astonished to see that my guides made no effort to get up with me. They sat motionless with expressionless faces. One of the fellows without a word jerked his thumb over his shoulder and I was startled.

Man, Two Married

he drove home from work about 5:30 a. m. They were lying at the edge of the macadam about fifty feet apart.

Time of Deaths Fixed

Dr. George Kieffer, Baltimore county medical examiner, said the victims had been dead about three hours when found. He said he could not estimate, however, how long the bodies had been lying beside the road.

Police said Percy Gray, father of the women and employee of a garage at Savage, on the Baltimore-Washington boulevard, told them his daughters visited him last night and left about 10 o'clock, saying they had to return an automobile they had borrowed from a friend, a taxicab driver.

The purpose of their visit, Gray said, was to invite their teen-aged twin sisters to a birthday party. Mrs. Carter had planned for today for her 14-year-old son.

Johnson told police he returned to his home at Alberton late last night after working on the 3 p. m. to 11 p. m. shift at the cotton mill.

Crippling Blow

and were not, in fact, hard-pressed.

"We had a very good fight with a superior force," the commentator asserted. "The main reason there is no enemy pressure may be that we gave him a very hard crack—or else he may be trying to by-pass us."

May Attempt Flank Movement

It was possible that the Japanese and their Thailand helpers would try to flank the strongest British points east of Moulmein and swing northwest to the Salween river above the city.

The Rangood air battle was fought both by the RAF and by the American volunteer group of former army pilots who came out to the Kipling country to help defend the Burma road.

The Yanks dived into "V" formations of enemy bombers and were in turn pounced upon by Japanese fighter escorts.

Japanese planes plunged, flaming, into rice fields many miles from military objectives. Other bombers jetted their loads and ran to escape the clattering machine-guns of the allied Tomahawks.

The A. V. G.'s latest "casualty" R. G. (Big Moose) Moss, from Georgia, turned up today, battered, but grinning, after a trip through Japanese lines by river boat, bull cart and plane. Moss got at least one Japanese plane before his own fighter was crippled.

The A. V. G.'s revised score, therefore, now is ninety-seven confirmed victories over Japanese planes and numerous probables, against three American dead and one missing.

thirty miles east of Toropetz Olenio, thirty miles east of Rzhnev and Staraya Toropka were among the more important settlements regained.

The most violent fighting of the year was reported to have marked the progress of the Red sweep in the forty-mile sector between Novgorod and the Moscow-Leningrad railway. An unexpected rise in subzero temperatures, which brought general snowfall, preceded the Russian assault upon Field Marshal Wilhelm Ritter von Leeb's positions.

Coupled with this new offensive were announcements that the Germans had been hurried back twenty-three miles west of Moshaisk in the crumbling salient west of Moscow and a continuing and accelerated advance by Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's forces in the Ukraine along a 100-mile stretch between Kursk and Kharkov.

The liberators of Moshaisk, who were crunching forward over deep snow for gains of six to seven miles a day, were reported to have captured ninety-eight more villages in the vicinity of re-occupied Uvarovo, Smolensk province town. In two days the Germans were reported to have lost 1,290 officers and men in this area.

Retreating Germans, trying desperately to reach the railroad at Vyazma, seventy miles west of Moshaisk, were reported under constant harassment by Soviet scouts. Russian armies racing from north and south to trap the beaten Nazis were taking village after village in their sweep duplicating triumphs of their forbears against Napoleon in 1812.

Warfront dispatches from the Ukraine said Timoshenko's advancing armies had recaptured forty-four towns and villages.

Some observers said it was possible that Orel, eighty miles north of Kursk and 210 miles south of Moscow, already might have been retaken. Orel, nearly encircled for a fortnight, was the southern anchor of the Germans' now-shattered Moscow front.

Nevada Airliner Crash a Mystery To Investigators

Weather Ideal and Crew Experienced, Inquiry Brings Out

Los Angeles, Jan. 23 (AP)—A tragedy without explanation.

This was the blazing crash of a luxurious airliner on a Nevada mountain — killing Screen Star Carole Lombard and twenty-one other occupants — described today at a government hearing. From hours of testimony, these facts stood out.

Weather was ideal for flying; The crew was experienced and competent.

Radio beams and most other flight aids were in working order; The equipment was new.

Hear Strange Details

The Civil Aeronautics Authority's public hearing, with members of a Congressional air safety committee in attendance, heard the inexplicable details from TWA and CAA observers and other airline pilots. For example:

Larry Fritz, TWA operations chief, said a change in course a few hundred yards to the left would have missed the peak entirely.

Arthur C. Cheney, western airlines pilot on a Burbank-Salt Lake City run, said only one of three beacons in the area was burning but that beacons were not essential. The other beacons, he added, were darkened on army air corps order since the war started.

Cheney flew over the burning wreckage soon after the crash.

Marshall A. Wooster, pilot of a Western Airlines San Diego-Salt Lake City trip, said he could see mountain tops from 10,000 feet altitude on a southbound run about the same time, despite absence of moonlight.

Radio Beams Working

John Campbell, CAA patrol pilot, said radio beams and other radio services were functioning perfectly.

Robert D. Fletcher, of the weather bureau in Los Angeles, said conditions at the time of the crash was ideal for flying.

Dead in the tragedy last Friday night, in addition to Miss Lombard, were her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peters, 55, army flier — described by a superior as the cream of pilots at the ferrying command in nearby Long Beach—two other civilians and three crew members, headed by the veteran 41-year-old pilot, Capt. Wayne Williams.

Japanese Land

views up until shortly before last midnight left the exact position there in some doubt.

See Danger to Allies

In the hour of their greatest danger the Australians stressed not only the menace to themselves but to the entire allied communications system in the Japanese footholds so close to the mainland.

New Britain is 800 miles north-east of the mainland; extreme southern New Guinea is within 100 miles of northern Australia; occupation of the Solomons will put the enemy well athwart the path of help from the United States.

Strong Japanese bases in New Guinea and the Bismarck archipelago could in some circumstances command the Torres strait between New Guinea and Australia proper and force a 3,000 mile detour of allied shipping south of the Australian mainland.

In a broadcast Deputy Prime Minister Francis Forde told the people of this sub-continent:

First Attack in History

"For the first time in history Australian territory has been attacked; for the first time in history a foreign invader is trying to get a foothold on Australian territorial soil.

"We shall give battle to the best of our ability wherever we fight.

"At this moment, Japan's attacking bases are within bombing reach of Australia (proper)."

"She has achieved a strength powerful enough to devastate our cities and industrial centers unless opposed in the battle areas with adequate weapons, machines and tools."

Forde pledged that with allied help "we will clear the seas and land of the Japanese menace."

Cities Blacked Out

Blackouts were imposed in all Australian cities. A million gas masks were ordered from England. Australia Day, the national holiday falling on Jan. 26, was cancelled.

Kieta, the initial Japanese beachhead in the Solomon Islands, is but 250 miles southeast of Rabaul in the island of New Britain, where communication with the mainland has been broken. Rabaul apparently was evacuated by the Australian garrison after its docks had been destroyed by the retreating force.

Eight hundred women and children had been taken from Rabaul by ten airliners which on some stages of the trip were escorted by American-built Catalina flying boats. This evacuation, it was disclosed today, had begun on Dec. 21. The air liners, which normally carry twenty-one passengers, in one case took fifty-three.

Reign of Terror Follows Japan's Death Decrees in the Philippines

SURVIVES TORPEDOING

By RICHARD L. TURNER
WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—A reign of terror in Japanese-occupied sections of the Philippines was indicated tonight by a war department communique which told of the establishment of death penalties for trivialities such as questioning the worth of the Jap army's special "invasion currency."

General Douglas MacArthur, in command of American and Filipino forces, reported to the department that the commanding Japanese general, Masaharu Homma, had signed a proclamation warning the civilian population that capital punishment would follow this and a list of other presumed offenses.

Long List of "Crimes"

Failure to obey Japanese orders was one of them. Others were hiding food and clothing to prevent commandeering by the Japs, rebellion, spying, sabotage, looting, polluting drinking water, stealing arms, or "any other acts against the interests of Japanese forces."

Earlier reports from MacArthur had told of a continued series of Japanese attacks upon the American-Filipino defense line. All assaults, he said, were repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

The Japs came to the Philippines with currency already printed for forced circulation in the islands. Filipinos are compelled to accept it in exchange for goods, or services or for the usual currency of the Philippines government, backed by gold and the credit of the United States.

Must Accept Bogus Money

It was made a capital offense, MacArthur said, to refuse to accept this bogus currency or to hinder "its free circulation by slanderous statements."

MacArthur's report was not the first indication that he is regularly receiving information from the Japanese-occupied sections and from behind the enemy lines. It is considered probable here that the general, who overlooks nothing, has a well organized intelligence service.

The army's earlier announcement concerning the fighting on Luzon quoted MacArthur as saying that the Japanese, heavily reinforced, were attacking without regard for casualties in an effort to overwhelm his fighting men by sheer weight of numbers.

Wavell Praises MacArthur

The army said, too, that General MacArthur had received a message from Sir Archibald Wavell, the commander-in-chief in the Far Pacific area, "formally congratulating him and his command for their magnificent defense of the Philippines."

Meanwhile, reports from Mindanao, the largest of the southern Philippine islands, said the Japanese invaders there had organized some 10,000 Japanese residents of Davao into a local military force. Most of Davao's 30,000 inhabitants are Japanese.

President Roosevelt disclosed here that the board of inquiry appointed to investigate the lack of alertness at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, was expected to submit its report shortly. He said he was uncertain whether or not it would be made public.

Marie Dionne III; Canada Calls in Famous Specialist

TORONTO, Jan. 23 (AP)—The provincial government of Ontario took time off from its war work today and like any other anxious parent called in the doctors to examine one of its five wards, Marie Dionne of the quintuplets, who has developed a muscular ailment in one of her legs.

Since the seven-year-old girls are wards of the crown and the provincial government, the announcement was made by Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn who said that while the ailment was not alarming a consultation would be held. Atrophy is suspected.

Dr. John Laing McDonald, an orthopedic specialist, of Toronto, Dr. Amyot of Montreal and Dr. Allen Roy Dafoe, official physician of the sisters, will examine the little girl.

The preliminary report on Marie's condition was made by Dr. J. Joyal of North Bay, who was called in when Olivia Dionne, father of the girls, said he feared something was wrong. Dr. Dafoe was out of the country at the time.

JOINS THE THREE R's

In England, war training has joined the three R's in the school curriculum. This youngster with the Tommy gun is Cecil Appleby, from Queen Mary's School at Walsall. A bill has been presented to the New York State legislature to make military training compulsory in all high schools in the state.

Compromise Plan Unites Americas Against the Axis

Argentina and Chile Accept Modified Proposals of 19 Nations

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 23 (AP)—A compromise resolution recommending but not requiring rupture of relations with Japan, Germany and Italy was approved unanimously today by the full twenty-one-nation political committee of the Pan-American conference.

The softened language resulted from the prolonged objections of Argentina, followed by Chile, to the original resolution for an outright severance of diplomatic ties with the Axis powers and to an earlier compromise providing for congressional approval of a break.

Argentina and Chile both on Wednesday had agreed to the first compromise, but later Argentine reservations caused new and lengthy negotiations resulting in the final simple "recommendation."

As finally approved at the oratory-laden open session of the political committee shortly after dusk tonight, the resolution read:

"Recommend" Rupture

"The American republics, following the procedure established by their own laws and within the position and circumstances of each country in the present international conflict, recommend rupture of their diplomatic relations with Japan, Germany and Italy, inasmuch as the first of these states attacked and the other two declared war on an American country."

Only the formality of approval by the full conference is required to complete the action.

Actually, of the twenty-one American republics, all already are at war against the axis or have severed relations with the Axis powers except Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Bolivia, Ecuador, Paraguay, Peru and Uruguay.

At this afternoon's meeting, foreign Minister Alberto Guani of Uruguay announced his country would sever Axis relations probably Saturday, and Brazil is expected to take the same step.

Sumner Welles, United States undersecretary of state who labored long to bring Argentina and Chile into the agreement, addressed the meeting in Spanish, declaring:

Welles Speaks in Spanish

"The ideal of my life always has been American unity. If it had been possible, my government would have liked something more definite and stronger.

"In our concept, the nations which carried war to the United States also carried it to the other Americas. This constitutes danger for all of us. Our hope is that we realize this danger, act accordingly, and thus I vote in favor of the proposals."

Soft Drinks Now Being Rationed

Sugar Shortage Forces Companies to Cut Down Output

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Two straws in every soft drink may shortly become a handicap instead of a romantic interlude.

Six of the nation's leading soft drink companies admitted today that the present government order limiting sugar consumption of the carbonated beverage industry had curtailed production of their output.

"We're rationing our deliveries," an executive of one company said, "and unless the government eases up we're in for a rocky year."

Coca-Cola Rationed

The Coca-Cola bottling company started rationing case deliveries to retailers several weeks ago and announced that sales would be reduced about thirty-five per cent.

The Pepsi-Cola Company declined to comment on its plans, but the Seven Up company, Orange Crush, Mission Dry and other soft drink concerns agreed that they had had to revise their production schedules.

Arthur Carle, executive of the Orange Crush Company, gave his reaction.

"Our sugar consumption this month is limited by the government to that in January, 1940," he said. "Unfortunately, 1940 was not a good year in the industry—1941 was. Leaders of the industry naturally are seeking to persuade the government to let us go ahead on sugar consumption plans based on what we did in 1941."

No New Accounts

"We're not taking on any new accounts—and I presume many other companies are handling it the same way. Businesses in many sections are going to be cut in half if we continue to be limited to what we did in 1940. I rather think the government will see our side of it—and that of the consuming public—and give us a break."

Blackout Ordinance Passed at Charles Town

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Jan. 23 (AP)—The Charles Town city council today adopted a blackout and air raid ordinance, with penalties of $25 to $100 for violations.

The ordinance, effective immediately, provides that all lights, signs, and signals must be extinguished at sounding of the alert, and that automobiles must pull over to the curb and stop.

Whooping Cough, Prevalent in Winter, May Lead to Something More Serious

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

To commemorate this date appropriately, I find in Dr. Harvey Cushing's classic "Life of William Osler" a letter from Dr. Osler dated January 24.

"Aunt Gracie is better today, but she has coughed and coughed and coughed," it states. "Can't you hear her whooping through this writing? It just gave me a shudder as I heard it. Poor Ike is sure to catch it."

Ike was the son, Reverend, aged then seven. What he caught from Aunt Gracie was, of course, whooping cough. Aunt Gracie was, in fact, his mother and was about forty years old at the time. The lesson is that which is implied in the old catch quiz question in medical classes: "If whooping cough were brought into a household, who would be most likely to catch it?" The answer is "Grandma."

An adult in a household may come home with a bad cough and before it is recognized, spread whooping cough all through the family. This is probably more or less inevitable, but it does carry the warning that respiratory infections which are put down to a chest cold or "a cough that hangs on" should be kept away as much as is possible and practical from the other members of the family.

Preventive Vaccine

I think that under these circumstances the use of the preventive vaccine for whooping cough should be considered. While I do not have enough confidence in it to recommend it for every child on entering school, I do believe that in the presence of an epidemic it will prove its usefulness. It has about a seventy per cent record of efficiency.

Whooping cough is by no means a disease to take lightly. It may be very serious, either in children or in adults. In children the paroxysms of coughing and the vomiting which follow are particularly exhaustive. For that reason I strongly recommend that all cases should be under the care of an experienced physician. The doctor can do a great deal with medicine to alleviate the distress in these patients by cutting down the amount of coughing and the number of paroxysms a day by making the mucus more liquid and easier to get up.

Such simple remedies as an abdominal binder for a child, which gives him something to cough against, are helpful out of all proportion to their simplicity.

The nutrition of the child with whooping cough can be controlled fairly easily in most cases. It must be remembered that the child does not vomit because it is sick at its stomach, but simply because of a reflex which begins with the strangling in the throat. It is able to take food within a few minutes after it vomits.

Liquid foods that are high in nutrition and heated so as to be soothing can be got down without trouble. Stupid and unnecessary mistakes are often made with these children in giving them food which may allow particles to remain in the throat. I remember a well-meaning grandmother who kept a poor little child in constant paroxysms by insisting on a diet of crackers and toast.

Questions and Answers
L. H. C.—What is the cause of simple sore throat? What is a remedy for it? Do pale lips signify anemia and if so what would you suggest for a diet?

Answer: It is hard to tell what you mean by simple sore throat. It may be pharyngitis or tonsillitis, or what appears to you to be simple sore throat, but it is something that is not simple at all, such as Vincent's angina or diphtheria. I gather from your question that it occurs to you quite often, so that rules out diphtheria. Pharyngitis, tonsillitis and Vincent's angina are all recurrent. If it is tonsillitis, you should have your tonsils removed. If it is Vincent's angina, you should have local treatment from a nose-and-throat doctor. If it is simple pharyngitis, simple treatment with gargles of hot water and salt, plenty of rest, and aspirin will be sufficient.

The same criticism that applies to your first question applies to your second. It is not fair to try to judge the severity of an anemia by looking at the lips. A blood count taken by a physician will tell you immediately.

Mrs. M. E. A.—"Are fibroid tumors cancerous?"
Answer: No.

Price Control Compromise A Big Disappointment

USUALLY a compromise on differing sections of a bill passed by both houses of the Congress comes through conference with the retention of the best features and the rejection of those against which there have been the most objections. The compromise reached on the Price Control bill, however, does not appear to have sailed through with such flying colors.

One provision is in direct opposition to the request by the president and general demand for a single price administrator. Although it is announced that there is to be a single price administrator whose orders could be appealed to the courts (a wise provision) that is materially canceled by the Bankhead amendment requiring price approval by the secretary of agriculture of all farm price orders.

Another provision, while contracting somewhat the farm parity price loopholes, still contains them with an indefinite choice of three ceiling standards clearly providing a minimum of 110 per cent of the parity many farmers have said would satisfy them.

Another big disappointment in the compromise is the omission of any provision for wage ceilings, which nullifies the rejection of the proposal to tie farm prices to urban wages.

With such a mongrel measure there seems to be little hope for a sufficient check to inflation. It is hard to see how it can prove effective in holding down living costs when one most important factor therein is allowed special profiteering privileges and the other is left wholly unrestrained.

The president should veto this misfit effort and advise Congress to enact a real price control measure.

Republicans Face New Calls to Duty

ALLEGANY COUNTY REPUBLICANS, through their State Central committee, have wisely decided to follow the advice of their national leader, Chairman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., and hold their traditional Lincoln day dinner, this time at Frostburg.

While partisanship is out for the duration and properly so, there is good cause for continuing these Lincoln day events if for no other reason than to sustain appreciation of the duties of a minority party in our system of government. But there is good reason also to continue emphasis of the enduring principles of the party and to pay tribute to the memory of its illustrious first leader.

In this connection, it is well to note that national leaders of the party are regarding the recent capture of a Democratic congressional seat in Connecticut as a significant demonstration of the innate strength of the organization and as an omen of victory in the November elections.

In this election both Democrats and Republicans agreed that the war was not an issue, as both candidates had endorsed the war policies of President Roosevelt, and that the result should be decided on the basis of party organization work and the personal popularity of the winner. The winner was Joseph E. Talbot, of Naugatuck, and he reversed the preceding Democratic plurality of 11,734 with a Republican plurality of 3,615, which was quite a switch.

It was the second time within six weeks that the Republicans had taken a seat in the House of Representatives from the Democrats. On December 9, Robert F. Rockwell, Republican, was elected in the Fourth Colorado district which had been represented by a Democrat, the late Edward T. Taylor, for thirty-three years.

In one other special congressional election since the outbreak of war, the Democrats retained the normally Democratic Seventh Massachusetts district by a comfortable margin in electing State Senator Thomas J. Lane to succeed the late Lawrence J. Connelly.

Wherefore, if Republicans are to be called in the coming elections to take over more legislative responsibilities, as here indicated, it is meet and proper that interest therein and appreciation thereof be sustained by such events as the Lincoln day gatherings.

The Great Adventure Of MacArthur's Men

PIECING TOGETHER official War department bulletins covering Gen. MacArthur's campaign in the Philippines, making a fair allowance for propaganda in both American and Japanese reports, submitting the result to examination in the light of what is known about the country, the situation and the probable strategy, it appears that this force may be engaged in one of the great adventures of American military history.

Apparent Gen. MacArthur is acting under instructions to drive the hardest possible bargain with the enemy. That calls for drawing the superior advancing Japanese forces into exposed positions, inflicting heavy casualties and destroying material and supplies, and then falling back to another position with the same advantages.

The Japanese air force seems to have given up hope of contributing much from the air to a decisive victory. Much of it seems to have been withdrawn, presumably because it could not find targets in the jungle which screens the American maneuvers. Reports that the Americans destroyed a dozen or more Japanese field batteries in an artillery duel indicate reliance on shells instead of bombs. Japanese bombing of Corregidor has failed to dishearten its stout defenders.

For two months MacArthur's men have been outmaneuvering and outfighting a greatly superior force. The morale advantage, which is always with the advancing army, favors the enemy. The Americans are forced to conserve supplies and sacrifice heavily to gain mobility. But they have the skill, hardihood and spirit to hold out. They are keeping a strong Japanese force from the Singapore campaign. In fact, if Singapore is held, MacArthur's tough and tireless army may deserve much of the credit.

Two Puzzles About Sugar

SECRETARY WICKARD'S WARNING that there may have to be resort to sugar rationing as the result of a probable shortage may have had more to do with checking the hoarding and price boosting of the commodity than any actual serious shortage.

In any event, we will all be perfectly willing to "tighten our belts" with regard to sugar consumption, provided there is fair rationing and decent price control.

Announcement has been made that supplies of sugar will be rationed to distributors, who in turn will ration distributors, beginning February 1, on the basis of their month-to-month deliveries during 1941, and a ceiling has been proclaimed by the OPM fixing the price of the table variety of granulated sugar at about five and a half cents a pound.

There remains two puzzles about the sugar situation, however. Right up until the time Secretary Wickard came up with his licks-like pronouncement, authorities and representatives of the sugar industry had been telling the people there was no prospect of a shortage. It was pointed out as long ago as 1940 without subsequent contradiction that in the event of a war in the Pacific, which is now upon us, the sugar capacity of the West Indies alone would suffice to make up any loss of supply resulting from such a war. The only interruption of sugar supplies is from the Philippines, which represents only a sixth of the total quota.

Another puzzling thing about sugar is that Congress has just completed action on a bill amending the 1937 Sugar Control act. The act was one of the much-demonstrated prosperity-through-scarcity schemes, through which domestic cane and beet sugar growers received payments for reducing their production. The amendment just passed would increase those reduction premiums by a full twenty per cent.

There doesn't seem to be any sense in that, if, as Wickard says, we are facing a sugar shortage.

Eight hundred interned Italians in Montana consume two tons of spaghetti a month, but news of this will be strictly censored in Italy.

The horse-and-buggy days, looming just over the horizon, look less attractive than they did a year ago.

Cry, Baby! Cry!

By MARSHALL MASLIN

A sound splits the night. A sound like no other in all the world. A kitten mew, most plaintively; a calf bawls impatiently; a little lost lamb baa-aas pathetically for his mother. . . None of their cries is like this one that is so small, so fierce, so compelling.

There's a tiny pink lump of humanity in that other room. . . Hours ago his mother set him in his basket. Quietly she drew the curtains, bent softly over the gently breathing thing, tip-toed from the room and shut the door so slowly, so delicately.

Now listen to him yell! "Laaaa! Laaaa! LAAAAAAH!" He frightened! He's furious! He alone in the dark and his stomach full empty and he roars his royal commands. . . You can imagine him in action. His face is read with fury. His mouth is open. His soft pink hands vibrate wildly above the covers. He wants something, he intends to get it—right now, RIGHT NOW!

In the other room life goes to pieces. Adult beings were talking about serious things—about the war, about the Internal Situation in Germany, about the Ability of the Japanese to Keep up the Pace, and about the Future. . . Now comes this "Laaa! Laaaa! LAAAAAAH!"

A mother whose children are nearly grown smiles reminiscently. How well SHE remembers that inopportune cry, how often she heard it and obeyed. . . As the baby's own mother hears and obeys instantly because she knows he will not stop until his Royal Commands are met. She walks in, snaps on the light, bends over that lusty yammering fellow and says, "Why so hot, little man?" . . . He waves his arms, he reaches up to her, he gags, chugs, chokes, puts on the brakes, looks pathetic, and the big tears roll down his pink fat cheeks. . . And then he feeds—from the dear soft breast or the hard utilitarian bottle—and for a while all is still save for his gurgling, grunting satisfaction.

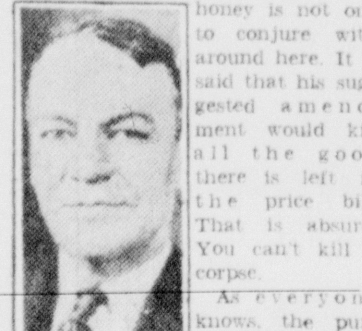

And now he smiles, the small soft tyrant. He has had his way, he's satisfied and he smiles. Such a gay smile, such a good baby. But he wouldn't melt in his mouth. He's had his food and the world is a wonderful place once. . . He yawns, such an engaging soft yawn—and would be placed in his downy soft nest once more.

Grownups, you are dismissed! His Majesty would sleep, your services are no longer required. Tip-toe out and shut the door, and talk about important matters once more. He'll call you when he needs you. . . Good night, Your Highness!

Strategy Is Seen In Parity Move By O'Mahoney

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Just now the name of Senator O'Mahoney is not one to conjure with around here. It is said that his suggested amendment would kill the good all the good there is left in the price bill. That is absurd. You can't kill a corpse.

Hugh S. Johnson

As everyone knows, the purpose of the price bill is to prevent a rapid runaway of prices of the things we must buy—especially necessities of life. This it proposes to do by making it illegal to buy or sell at prices higher than the price administrator approves.

The two principal elements of the price of anything are: first, the cost (wages, hours and working conditions) of labor; second, the cost to the worker of what he buys, —principally food and clothing—farm prices.

Others Are Dragged

If one of these elements goes up, it drags the other one with it. If the cost of labor goes up, the price of what the farmer buys (implements, furniture, fertilizer, etc.), goes up with it. Immediately then the farmer is entitled to higher prices from the administrator.

Under the original bill he would get them. But here you are again. The higher farm price entitles labor to higher wages. Labor gets them. At once the price of what the farmer buys goes up and labor wants more wages. So we go, with every one of these steps, as on the rungs of a rickety ladder, leading to the dizzy and dangerous heights of inflation.

The president's original price bill tried to prevent that by applying the formula to all except a handful of unimportant things. It takes a substantial increase in the price of one great segment of what we consume greatly to affect the whole structure of prices to plague us all and finally ruin us.

Most Influential

But labor and farm prices are among the most influential segments where rising prices rapidly increase the whole cost of living and decrease the value of the means we have left to meet the new costs—wages, salaries, incomes, savings and so forth. Accordingly, the president proposed to include both workers' and farmers' prices in the area of price control.

Without that inclusion, the price bill wouldn't have been worth the paper on which it was written or the hawk bells on the cap of a professional fool put there to advertise his zinniness.

When organized labor came to be considered, it refused point-blank to submit to any price control at all—and organized labor is too powerful for any cringing congressman to buck. Immediately every attempt to control wages dropped out of the price bill and sank without trace.

Made a Mockery

This was bad enough to make the price bill a mockery. It left farm prices and, indeed, the monthly budget of all of us about as helpless as a one-legged man in a pants-kicking contest—and for much the same reason. Right then, it would have been better to have no bill at all than this thing which had become about as useless as a pair of scissors with only one blade.

But the public with low and ominous rumbling was demanding a price bill. So a political trick was pulled. The labor provisions disappeared and the flexible ceiling over farm prices was not to be fixed lower than would be enough to give the farmer the greatest buying power he has had since the fatal Twentieth century had begun.

There was no great howl about this because that is "parity" price—something the farmer has been contending for and promised by both political parties for many years.

Effective Monkey Wrench

Senator O'Mahoney threw a monkey-wrench into the machinery of that broken-down jalopy too. His

TIME TO PREPARE FOR THE COMING HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS

Prospective Wool Shortage for Clothes Suggests Turning Plan of World War

By MARK SULLIVAN

I am informed, by sources I deem accurate, that after a few months, wool will be scarce, and mainly taken for the army; that men's suits will be made in part of cotton, and of used and re-worked wool.

Isn't this latter what we used to call "shoddy"—before we learned to gild plain things with euphemistic names? The report is credible. If it comes about, it will be another proof that history repeats, in small details as in mighty events.

During the Great War there was a tailor with a little shop on Union square in New York, to whom I used to take my suits for cleaning and pressing. Once, as wartime scarcity reflected itself in shyness of surface, the tailor remarked that my suits were of good material, and if I wished he could turn them inside out, and thereby give me months of added wear.

I told him I never heard of men's suits being turned; that the art must be difficult, since in the turned suit, buttons must be where button-holes formerly were, and vice-versa, and there were other intricacies. The tailor, however, assured me he could do it, that he had learned the art when an apprentice in Europe, that in Europe turning suits was not unusual—if I had never heard of it, that was only because American lavishness has been too disposed to look down on careful economy. I left one of my suits with him. He turned it, with a skill so sound, and results so manifestly good, that I sent him all the suits I had. He was proud of his art, hence did it well.

Some while later, passing through Chicago, I dropped into the office of the Tribune, to chat with an old friend, Edward Beck, legendary among newspaper men as a great managing editor. Beck, glancing at the suit I wore in a spirit of faintly satiric admiration, asked me how I managed to beat the war-time scarcity, how I happened to have new clothes. As I told him, his eyes lit up with professional zeal. "That's a bully story," he said, and called a stenographer. Without giving me a chance to reflect whether I wished a thing so personal as my suit of clothes to be made a news story, he asked me questions to bring out all the details.

At various times in my life, publicity has descended upon me, some not unwelcome some that I could have got along without; sometimes brought about by entrepreneurs of my services, such as publishers and lecture bureaus; sometimes spontaneous and unsought. Never did limelight play about me with such sudden and dazzling glare as when I stood before the eyes of the world of cards held by dead persons because so general the Germans issued an order for their immediate surrender by the families of the deceased.

Perhaps the day is coming when food rather than money will be locked in our own bank vaults and guarded by armed men. Money—even gold—may become worthless, to be relegated to museums. But food and clothing and shelter and the land and materials and implements for their production will always have value.

A Black Bourse For America?

From the Bethesda Journal

The heyday of the bootlegger is here again. His new stock in trade is not liquor but metals, tires, and all sorts of materials that enter into war making. Soon it may be foods. He is no longer called a bootlegger, but is now tagged with the fancy label of "priority profiteer." A priority profiteer is one who finds a devious way around hampering priority restrictions, or sells at prices above those decreed by the Office of Price Administration.

In Europe these traders are as common as bootleggers were in this country during the prohibition era. Over there they are called black marketers. Black marketers have been a commonplace in Russia for years. Private traders—known as "speculators"—continued to carry on after their vocation had been outlawed by the Communists.

In France under Nazi rule illicit traders have adopted American black-marketing methods. Armed gangsters recently attacked a Marseilles sugar warehouse. A group of black market dealers have been using a hearse to carry on their illicit trade. Food and clothing ration cards are counterfeited at high prices. Illegal use

Big Shots Moved

Beck, with authentic newspaper genius, knew instinctively that news interest lies not in an event alone, but in its background. Under ordinary conditions, my turned suit would have appealed to Beck's professional instinct no more than any other old clothes. But at a time when wool was scarce, when government was appealing for economy, and everybody practicing it and talking about it—in those circumstances a novel device for economy was "top of column" must.

Inquiry descended upon me, about the name of the tailor, and other details. That little shop on Union square received customers novel to its unpretentious modesty. One I recall was Congressman, later Senator, Modell McCormick, of Illinois, who packed off his entire wardrobe in a trunk, including his dress suit, difficult to turn. Another was a prominent banker of the day, Frank A. Vanderlip, Secretary of the Treasury. William G. McAdoo was interested because he, as shrewd about publicity as any newspaper man, wished to give momentum to the government's campaign for economy. McAdoo for some time wore on his clothes conspicuous patches, designed not for an utilitarian purpose of covering holes that were not there, but to serve as propaganda for economy.

Cost Higher Now

The other day, seeing scarcity of wool approach once more, I dropped in to a tailor shop in Washington, to ask about turning clothes. The tailor said yes, it could be done, but had a demurring manner. He said the cost would be high. In the less expensive days of twenty-three years ago the price I paid was, as I recall—I tell this whole incident from memory—$13. The Washington tailor said that the manufacture of ready-made clothes has so improved, and the cost so reduced, that a man would do better to buy a new suit of inexpensive clothes, than to have an old one turned.

Nevertheless, if the scarcity of wool comes, and is prolonged, I think I shall try to find a tailor who will turn my suits. My spirit will be better sustained by an old suit turned, or even by one palatial and shabby old than by a new one made of inferior material dictated by government economy. Even though I may have to progress far toward nudity I shall follow a family rule I'm proud of me when young, "buy the best—or do without."

American Units Harass the Japs In Heroic Manner

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Brilliant and sly Gen. Douglas MacArthur prearranged a scheme with his forces, whereby any units cut off by his withdrawal, would take to the hills and prey upon the backs of the Japanese in the manner of the Philippine hero Aguinaldo, until their ammunition ran out.

Behind the terse mention in War department communiqué No. 68 of an unidentified American unit raiding a Jap airport far in the north of Luzon, lies the swashbuckling tale of a cavalry unit, riding and fighting in the depths of Japanese-occupied territory, beyond rescue or relief, preparing to stand until the last man is gone.

Several such units are loose among the Japanese in Luzon and at least one more in Mindanao. They are not wild mountain natives, but American troops and Filipino descendants of that same Aguinaldo's band, mindful that their old hero defied the forces of the United States government successfully in those same hills for nearly two years, before becoming good citizens in 1901.

Use Bows and Arrows

The semi-civilized mountain tribesmen still use bows and arrows, are not accustomed to firearms. It is unlikely that the isolated MacArthur forces have cared to waste ammunition by attempting to rearm or enlist these tribes. But the lost regulars obviously have radio contact with MacArthur.

Pasture lands are available for their horses and they can get food. Their problem will be ammunition. They have to rely on what they can capture from the Japs, although American bombers are now within reaching distance of their lairs and may be able to fly over and drop some supplies.

Far to the south of Mindanao island in the province of Davao another American unit was forced by the Jap advance to retire to the hills. Here as in Luzon, the Japs control the seaports and bases, and therefore rescue is unlikely.

The stirring deeds of all these surrounded units already have guaranteed them a special inspiring niche in history alongside with inspiring forebears, Stuart and Mosby, and the garrison of Wake island.

Important Capture

Importance of the Red capture of Mozhaisk lies in its strategic geographic significance. From that point to Leningrad run the Valdai Hills, 1,200 to 1,500 feet high, and easily defended. The whole German defensive position on the Moscow-Leningrad front rested upon these hills. The Nazis could not be driven out as long as they held Mozhaisk and Vyazma to the south. But now, the Reds may be able to cut their way up past Vyazma, get into the rear of the Germans in the hills and force their withdrawal, relieving the whole Leningrad area.

No other good physical defense line is available until the Nazi get 160 miles back to Smolensk. The ground is frozen they cannot now dig in, cannot pour concrete. They are protected somewhat by chest-deep snow. Their withdrawal from Mozhaisk was skillful. They had 150,000 men in the pocket two weeks ago and prevented the Reds closing the jaws of the pincers and surrounding them. In the end they apparently escaped with most of the three divisions left behind as a rear guard. Even so, their predicament is worth the cheering the Reds have given it.

Fins May Go Out

A slight push now should edge Finland out of the war and into a separate peace. Their food and equipment is running low. Trusted reports are heard that the German troops among them are being thinned out by Hitler in anticipation of Finnish surrender.

To knock the Fins out, however, the Reds may have to turn north and drive them from the Ladoga and Onega Lakes regions. This will probably be the next move.

International Law Violated

Those American coastal tankers being exploded without warning by Nazi subs off our east coast are not armed. The sinkings are a violation of international law established in the Treaty of London and signed by the Germans and Japanese only five short years ago. That treaty provided:

"A warship whether surface vessel or submarine may not sink a merchant ship without having first placed passengers, crew and ships papers in a place of safety (except in cases of resistance or refusal to stop). The ship's boats are not regarded as a place of safety."

Explosion of a tanker without notice is an especially cruel act of war as ordinarily the surrounding waters are covered with burning oil through which escape is hazardous. Our sinkings, as far as is known here, have been in accord with international law which allows no notice to armed merchantmen men of war.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Author on Problems of Love and Marriage - Distributed by King Features Syndicate Inc.

Stop Look and Listen

Dear Miss Fairfax: I'm married woman of 21, have a small son. My husband is 26 years old and very good to me. We've been married two years and everything has been all right except that my husband doesn't dance. We go out to dinner once a week, and to a show another evening, but I miss dancing.

One night when my husband asked overtime, I had someone dance with the baby and I went to a dance where I met an old boy friend, whom my husband dislikes, and we had a great time talking about old times. Ever since then I've been reminded of this boy in many ways, tunes I hear on the radio remind me of when we used to sing together.

What can I do? I want attention from my husband and he doesn't seem to realize that I want to be noticed, loved. I will keep up my appearance, haven't lost my figure. Small I forget this boy or go out with him till I get him out of my system?

BETTY

Why shake the foundation of a good home where you are loved, respected and have a precious baby growing up for a few sentimental reminiscences and a "Waltz Me Around Again Willie? I hope I am sufficiently broad-minded to suggest that danger lurks in dancing with an old boy friend. But when a happily married young woman begins to moon over him, it's time to stop.

Try to persuade your husband to learn how to dance.

Considers Men All Foolish

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm only 18 years old, but I think I have a mind of 30 or more, as far as finding a boy friend for whom I can really care. I'm interested in sports, hobbies and cultural activities, and still I'm always ready to join in with the younger group.

I suppose I've set up too high an ideal of what boys and men ought to be, because somehow or other when I go out with them, they always prove just the opposite. The boys seem to irritate me with their foolish talk. Can you help me find someone in whom I would be interested? Should he be much older than I and what type should I choose?

J. T.

Your frame of mind impresses me as the last stand against the enemy, and doubtless, by the time this letter appears in print, you'll have met someone who will have sent all your aversions into reverse.

Fess up, now! Wasn't there some boy who inspired you to write a letter to me? Because in this queer, contrary world of ours, love and hate are so curiously mixed, especially when you're divinely young, that it's pretty hard to tell them apart sometimes. But if there wasn't anyone who inspired your letter, rest assured someone will come along soon.

Separated by Misunderstanding

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm devotedly in love with a certain young man and I think he cares for me too. We had a misunderstanding and quarrelled, and I haven't seen him for six months, until a few days ago when he attended one of the socials at our church.

I can't forget him, and although I've been out with several other boys, this one stays longest in my memory. We didn't have a chance to speak to each other alone, so I don't know how he feels toward me now. Please give me a word of counsel as to how I may act toward him, so that we can make up again.

JANET

It's so much easier from the outside looking on to see the folly of two people saying "mad" over some foolish little misunderstanding, when they really care deeply. And the tragedy of such a situation is that after a while they become adjusted to this estrangement and go their separate ways.

Next time you meet him, why not put out your hand in greeting, and say "I'm not mad any more—are you?"

He Wasn't Serious

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Last summer I became acquainted with a likeable young man whom I had been wishing to meet for some time. I went out with him several times and he came to call, but all of a sudden he stopped seeing me. One of my girl friends recently spoke to him and said that he took him too seriously and that he cared for me only as a friend. As I really love this man, I feel terribly hurt and can't get interested in another man.

BERNIE

We've all got to learn what's known as "playing the game." Not the least important among the rules is the one about not wearing your heart on your sleeve. It's too bad you let this young man see how much you cared for him. He probably isn't in a position to marry, and is scared to death at the prospect of having a girl hang on his every word.

The next time you meet him, be natural and don't show you care. Try to show an interest in someone else, even if it's only assumed. That would be a good thing and might bring him back. Let him get the idea that you are going around with someone else. If he loves you, he will return.

Thinks Father Opposes Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 16 very much in love with a boy of 21. I'm a junior in high school. My father doesn't approve of my going out with boys, so I meet my boy friend on the sly. Dad found out about it and I have been lectured severely and even slapped.

I am supposed to be in before nine, which my boy friend doesn't like, and when I come in, which is always at a reasonable hour, my father and I argue and I'm gradually drifting away from him. I thought a father is supposed to have love in his heart for his children and try to understand them. But when my father can't see that I'm in love, I wonder when his love for me is.

I'm going to receive an engagement ring and I know my father will try to separate us when he sees the ring. My mother approves of the young man. What shall I do?

BROWN-EYES

While I have deep sympathy for Sweet Sixteen and her problems of the heart, still I understand your father's point of view. These days it's pretty difficult for a boy of 21 to support a wife, when it is possible he may be in the Army. And then I suppose your dad has visions of seeing you come home to the parental roof.

When I get a letter like yours, I wish to get show you letters which come from girls who have married at 15, 16 and 17 years of age and are full of bitterness and discontent. Bitter because they have changed youth's golden opportunities for trying to keep house on a small budget, care for babies and have to watch girls of their own age having a good time without ever joining in the fun. Young husbands get tired of domestic problems as well as teen age wives. Only they're able to go out and forget. I know that sometimes very early marriages turn out happily. They're the exception rather than the rule.

Wise To Conceal Jealousy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The man I'm in love with is divorced. I am unhappy married. He always seems anxious to see me whenever he comes over, but I've heard that he takes out another woman. He denies it. Do you think it would be wise to tell him I don't believe him and prove my point, or how should I go about it? How can I find out if he really cares for me? I don't want to be left in a lurch.

UNHAPPY.

Your letter doesn't say whether you are divorced or not. If you aren't, you're hardly in a position to object to the young man's attentions to others. You may have noticed that the women who keep their admirers on a loose rein hold them longer than those ladies who believe in the curbed bit method. Better not try any method to find out if he cares. It will only make you appear jealous. And while jealousy is almost the oldest human emotion, it's the part of wisdom to conceal it.

Can They Live on Soldier's Pay?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm very much in love with a soldier, but he doesn't make enough money so that we can be married. Do you think we could live on a soldier's pay? I've always been thrifty and am willing to try to get along. I'm working now, but must give up my job if I marry. What would you suggest we do?

GIRL IN LOVE

solder sweetheart will have to see the approval of his superior officer before he marries. Granting this, married privates usually have their wives live as near the reservation as possible. If they take their meals at home, they are allowed a small sum for rations in addition to their pay. Supplies may be bought at the commissary much cheaper than at ordinary shops.

Cupid is recognized by soldiers, but their wives often have to help out with a job, or part-time work. You'll agree it's a struggle, but many have made the grade. My advice is that you save all you can for the happy day, and if you can do so, try to get another job.

Wife Has Troubles

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been married nine years, have two children, and do all my own work, including the laundry. My husband is one of those men who takes things for granted, and doesn't ever give me a compliment. He seems to think I'm my job to do with I do and that I should be satisfied to have a roof over my head.

He has friends who call up, sometimes when I answer the phone, it's some girl. He answers and talks a while and then says he doesn't know who it is, although I know that's a lie.

He goes out every night, stays till all hours of the morning, and always says he's been out on business. Now, Miss Fairfax, I know his business doesn't take him out to that extent.

yourself a trip to the tax collector's office to get your application for 1942 automobile license tags perforated.

Tax Collector Albin C. Thompson said yesterday that the application cards are in his office for checking with the tax books. Payment of 1941 taxes is shown by perforation of the card, a step which must precede issuance of the 1942 tags.

The cards will be sent back to the commissioner of motor vehicle's office February 1 to be mailed out to car-owners, and a trip to the court house will be necessary if the perforations aren't made by that time. So pay your taxes now, Thompson urges.

Tomorrow from the pulpits and platforms of all religious denominations and allied organizations, the fight against infantile paralysis will be the subject of sermon and address.

This is the date of the fourth annual "Infantile Paralysis Sunday", and the occasion when religious leaders call to the attention of their congregations the needs in this nationwide effort to care for the thousands of the afflicted and to pursue with greater intensity the search for a cure or a preventive which will end for all time the body-maiming, life-warping invasion of this cruel epidemic disease.

In some churches and temples as well as in certain of the religious hours on the radio, direct appeals for contributions to the cause will be made. In others, the congregations will be informed of the greeting cards, coin containers, etc., through which such contributions can be made.

Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by Keith Morgan, national chairman for the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday, for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Morgan stated that endorsements of the annual campaign and pledges of participation in "Infantile Paralysis Sunday", have come from a greater number of American clergymen and religious leaders than ever before.

850 Individuals Contribute

One interesting fact revealed by last night's report was that outside the contributions made by the large corporations and firms the rest of the money has been obtained from about 850 individuals. There are 6,000 cards out and if each person who is contacted would only give a dollar or two the campaign would "go over the top" in a final rush such as made the Yankee dough-boys famous, Burke remarked after the meeting.

The workers will meet again Tuesday at 6:15 p. m. when it is expected the report will show that the "Y" is here to stay.

Sewing Machines Are Wanted by Local Group

Centre Street Methodist Church Will Sponsor New Organization

Mrs. George W. Barnard requests donations of two sewing machines for the use of the Red Cross sewing group to be organized under the sponsorship of the Philathea Bible class of Center Street Methodist church. The class is also sponsoring a Red Cross first aid class to begin as soon as teachers can be procured.

A donation of $25 to the Red Cross was subscribed at the meeting of the class Thursday evening at the church. Mrs. William Darkey and Mrs. C. F. Hammer gave the Scripture reading and the prayer, and Mrs. D. A. Fletcher conducted the singing with Mrs. Guy Brengle at the piano.

Civilian defense was the theme of the meeting. Members working in the Cumberland Control Center, the Motor Corps; other Red Cross first aid classes and sewing groups, food nutrition course and home nursing classes described their work. Mrs. J. W. Holmes outlined the victory gardens which all are being urged to plan this spring.

Mrs. Harvey Hill, Mrs. Edward Dawson, Mrs. William Darkey, Mrs. Alex Buchanan, Mrs. Howard Boor and Miss Ina Morris were hostesses.

Scandal Party Planned

A scandal party will be the feature of the entertainment at the meeting of the Young Women's Society of Christian Service at the Grace Methodist church to be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Dorothy Miller, 113 Oak street. The Valentine motif will be carried out in the decorations.

Plans for the year and the budget will be planned at the meeting which will proceed the social hour.

P.-T.A. Association Members Hear Talk By A. L. Rogers

"The Relation of Parents to Their Children's Education" was the subject of an address delivered Thursday night at a meeting of the Geppard school Parent-Teacher Association.

The speaker said that only a small percentage of a child's education is received in school, and that parents should make a supreme effort to mould at home the type of man or woman they desire their child to be. Home life reflects in the child's actions and attitude in the classroom, Mr. Rogers said.

Mrs. Walter Robinson reviewed the state Parent-Teacher convention held at Silver Springs, and brought out the part the school associations must play in defense program. After the business session, DeLisle Chaney showed "talkie" movies of "Children At School", "Singapore", and "The Bill of Rights."

"tricky" question of what is the capacity of individuals who drink whiskey and just how can it be decided when a man is intoxicated. One man may be able to drink any number of whiskies and still be able to function normally while another may be able to hold only one drink. Shutter asserted.

Shutter also said it would be well to scrutinize the arresting officer's statements as to when a man is intoxicated as he might make an overstatement. Paul M. Fletcher, assistant state's attorney, countered with the observation that it "is better to take chances with an overzealous officer than with a 'substantially drunk' defendant" in these cases. McFarland was arrested by Trooper Harry Harrison on December 4 on the McMillen highway.

Announcement of Fare Increase

Due to wage increases of over 15% recently contracted for with our employees and continued increased costs of materials and supplies for maintenance and operation of buses, some increases in bus fares will be made effective February 15, 1942.

These increases will mainly be limited to rides where the cash fare is now 30c or over. Such increases in most cases will be 5c for each ride and 2c to 4c on commutation tickets. No increases for short haul rides.

Copies of the new tariff are available at the general office of the company at Frostburg and may be secured upon request.

THE DAILY STORY

BEAUTY QUEEN

About Sue Ann, Who Couldn't Tell Anybody That She Had Won a Beauty Contest—and Why
(Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.)

By VIRGINIA COFFEY

The sand was a silvery white and as fine as star dust under foot. The surf sang gently along the edge of the great beach, a vital background to the people lolling in the sun.

"Pretend you're slumming." "And what do they pick?" asked Sue Ann timidly.

"Well, it's like a—beauty queen—for the week," one of the boys replied. He was a stocky tow-head that had eyes only for that shyly twinkling smile Carol had worked up.

"Mother won't let us go," Sue Ann stated flatly. At the same time, she wished with all her heart that she was as—continental as Carol. She noticed the admiring glances all aimed in one direction.

The four soon convinced Sue Ann their plans would come through and at 7 that evening the towhead's mother came to the girls' room to invite Sue's mother to her room for an informal little get-together "and perhaps some cards." Carol was in the shower, and Sue Ann was brushing her hair.

"You can read for a little while, girls, but you'd better have a good night's rest. We're going for a drive through the countryside tomorrow morning. I made the arrangements this afternoon," Mrs. Dunning hurried in to pick up her purse and gloves.

"Don't worry about your mother, child. She may be a little late, but we want to really get acquainted tonight. Bye, bye." The other woman smiled her cheer and patted Sue's brown locks.

Sue shut the door after them. "We'll have a good night, but it won't be of rest," Carol whispered from the midst of a giant towel. "And say, after yesterday morning—well, you're going to look super smooth tonight, Sue. Super-super smooth."

Mrs. Dunning wasn't up so bright and early herself the next morning, so she noted nothing about the girls' manners that prompted her to inquire how late they "read." But, nevertheless, there was a rush

"Jeune Gens Week they call it—and there'll—"

"Just a minute, boys," Carol laughed, "one at a time. Who's giving all this?"

"The hotel."

"Ah, good morning, Mrs. Dunning," the clerk was just saying. "Congratulations. For what?"

"Why, for Miss Dunning?"

"Miss Dunning? What's she done?"

"The other woman turned to hide her smile and saw the two girls. She motioned for them to stay clear, the fireworks would be starting soon."

"Why, she was elected belle of the ball—sort of a queen of beauty for the week. Didn't you know?" The clerk was obviously confused.

"That's Carol and her doing? If I'm not watching her every minute, she's doing something wrong. If she were only my child, I'd have her toeing the mark. Why, Sue Ann would no more do such a thing than she'd fly." Mrs. Dunning was twisting her handkerchief in her anger.

"But, my dear Mrs. Dunning, it was—"

Sue Ann interrupted the boy's mother.

"Mother, it wasn't Carol—it was me. I won." She grinned. "I think I'll take up flying, mother. It's soooooo interesting."

to prepare for the drive after breakfast.

Sue's mother sailed on downstairs ahead of the girls saying she would start ordering. Carol and Sue Ann were not far behind her, for they had had a premonition.

They reached the lobby just as Sue's mother was strolling toward the desk—with the towhead's mother. They started to circle by, but Carol got the bright idea it would be better to follow Mrs. Dunning. So they did.

"Ah, good morning, Mrs. Dunning," the clerk was just saying. "Congratulations. For what?"

"Why, for Miss Dunning?"

"Miss Dunning? What's she done?"

fitting. Be sure you draw the line somewhere," Enid warned, and Molla laughed.

Eddie Bryan phoned that night. "We've got a harmless little yarn in the paper again tomorrow. Now, you might be a little peeved, but don't let it get you. As I say, it's harmless and it'll be great stuff."

"What is it?" Molla asked quickly, but he wouldn't tell her. You'll see."

Enid beat her to it. She laid the paper down on Molla's desk. "Beautiful Norwegian refugee signs movie contract; needs husband to quickly gain United States citizenship," Enid droned laconically, reading the headline aloud.

"The picture isn't flattering, either," Enid added.

Molla grabbed the paper frantically. She felt sick inside as she read the story.

"Terrific publicity," Enid admitted. "I suppose it's intended to strike a gallant and sympathetic chord in the heart of every untapped male citizen in the country. Ummmm—will you get applications through the mail? Tell me, are you going to be needing a social secretary soon?"

Molla bit her lip. "This is frightful. Is that what they mean by publicity? This is untrue. Nothing but lies. I'm NOT looking for a husband so I can become a citizen. It was Bryan himself who mentioned it. Oh, Enid, what will people around here think? Mr. Whitworth—and Tay?"

Enid shrugged. "They're intelligent people. They know the value of publicity. Don't go worrying about it now."

"I guess," Molla said bitterly, "that I'm about to discover that it's true what they say about Hollywood."

"That's Hollywood, all right," Enid muttered.

"You said it," another voice cut in.

They looked up quickly. It was Tay, and he had a paper in his hand too.

"That's Hollywood, and it's only the beginning. You haven't seen anything yet. Wait'll they make imprints of your eyelids in fresh cement while 40,000 morons stand by waiting to give you writers' cramp."

Tay heaved an exaggerated sigh. "Ah, Hollywood. Land of beautiful beauties, brainless buffoons and bungling yes-men. Some alliteration, hey girls? Maybe I ought to be a writer. Good idea. Then I go to Hollywood with you."

He patted Molla on the shoulder. "Happy landings."

Dr. Myers Urges Home Curfews For Children

Rule Termed More Desirable than Ever during Present Emergency

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Over a period of eighteen months, Mrs. Myers and I have been in a different town or city nearly every night, throughout most of the states. We have observed in practically every village, town or city through which we have motored many children, especially from five to twelve, on the streets at night running about at play without evidence of any supervision or control. In normal times it would seem that runabouts should be off the streets after dark, for their physical and mental safety. How much more desirable are home curfews during the present emergency. It seems to me that one of the most patriotic things parents could do right now would be to establish and enforce a curfew law in their homes for runabouts and that their teen-age children should, where control is reasonably possible, be away from home at night less late and less often than formerly.

A Great Help

If only parents, especially parents of education and community influence, would enforce a curfew rule with their children, it would make for the character and citizenship of their children, for the general welfare of the community, and thus help our nation.

Not all parents who really care could accomplish this right away. Some parents, indeed, might as well tell the ocean waves to cease to roll as to tell their youngsters to follow any rule. These parents, having followed the false prophets who told them not to restrain their children when they were young, now find these children deaf to reason and beyond control.

To my fellow parents who can control your children: Let me entreat you to make clear to these children, especially of the age range of five to fourteen, that they shall always make a beeline for the house when the street lights appear. Have no argument about it. Let the youngster know a punishment will follow each violation of this rule.

The safety of our country in war or peace demands that parents control their children. Let no one deceive himself to believe that democracy requires a very high order of discipline.

Solving Parent Problems

Q If you spoke a foreign language well would you teach it to your child?

A Yes indeed, after he reached the age of five or six and had pretty well mastered the English language. See the comradship that's possible when the child learns to speak a non-English tongue with his parents, not to mention the cultural and educational values.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

MOLLA PUT the phone down slowly. "The screen test was a success," she said to Enid.

Enid let out a little squeal. "Wonderful! But, heavens, can't you get any more enthusiastic than that? It's—I'm simply thrilled to pieces. You're going to accept of course."

Molla shook her head. "I think I will. She knew why she was going to attempt it, but telling Mr. Whitworth wasn't going to be easy."

When she finally went into his office and told him, he looked at her quite steadily, a slight smile on his face. He took her hands in his. "I'm afraid I wouldn't consider you quite normal if you didn't try it," he said. "You go right ahead, with my blessings."

"But I feel terrible leaving you, and I can't thank you enough for what you've done. But it came to me very suddenly. One can do a lot of things with money, and maybe some day I'll be able to get my mother out of Norway and bring her here."

He nodded. "I understand. Oh—don't you think you'd better tell Tay, too? I believe he's in his office now."

An incredulous, somewhat alarmed look flitted across Tay Whitworth's face. "Molla, no. I won't let you!" He gripped her firmly by the shoulders and drew her closer to him. "This is a terrible place to tell you, but this is certainly the time. Molla, I love you. I want to marry you. Molla."

Her eyes opened a little wider and, even as the tingling shock hit her, he had taken her in his arms and kissed her.

"No, Tay," she said, trying to break away. But he wouldn't let her.

"But, Molla, you do love me, don't you?"

"I—I don't know, Tay. And as long as I'm not certain . . ."

"But I'll make you be certain. You will be certain, but it won't be simple if you rush off 3,000 miles away."

Sue shook her head. "Maybe I'll be back, sooner than I expect, too. You can wait a little longer, can't you?"

"You mean you'll come back to me if you don't make good?"

He had pinned her down. She didn't want to answer then, but she did. "Yes, Tay, I will."

Molla didn't even get a chance to tell Neil. He came up behind her, tapped her on the shoulder and when she turned around he extended one big hand.

"Congratulations," he said with a smile. "Give it both barrels and you won't miss."

Molla smiled faintly. "So finally I find one member of the family who really is glad."

"I'm glad," he said evenly, "if you think you're doing the right thing."

That left so much unsaid, Molla thought. "If you're doing the right thing."

Molla took Eddie Bryan's pen, and without the slightest hesitation wrote her name. She looked at it for a few seconds, etched indelibly, it seemed, into an entirely different pattern of life.

"Wonderful, Bryan said. "Extra wonderful." He folded the contract and put it in his pocket. "Say," he said suddenly, "your status as an alien . . . it's okay, isn't it? We've got to make sure of those things."

"Oh, I guess so," Molla assured him. "It's a little complicated, but I think it will be all right. You see, I had applied for my first citizenship papers as an English citizen in London and thus was able to get a visa to come to America. Mr. Whitworth promised that I'll be able to apply for my citizenship papers under the immigration quota."

"He did, eh. Well, I hope there's no slip up anywhere. Of course," Bryan said, jokingly, "you might fall like a ton of bricks for some heavenly beauty out in Hollywood and marry him. Your worries would all be over then."

"Of course, if I marry an American, I immediately can become an American citizen."

"Sure. Uh-huh. Well, what do you say we leave here Monday. We'll fly out and the boys will have a little publicity reception ready for us at the other end of the line."

"Monday? So soon? That's less than a week."

"Sure. The sooner the quicker," he cracked. "Any objections?"

"Noooooo, I guess I can be ready by then."

Virtually every New York newspaper carried the story the following day. Eddie Bryan had lost no time in getting Molla's publicity build-up under way.

"Well, you're in print again," Enid remarked. "Incidentally, do you intend to work right up to the last day?"

"Of course. There isn't much I have to do. No family to offer lingering goodbyes. No business problems to untangle. Very little shopping to do, because Mr. Bryan tells me the wise thing to do is to complete my wardrobe in Hollywood."

"Sure . . . with a publicity cameraman snapping every try-on and

The Temptation of Jesus

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matt. 4:1-11; Mark 1:12, 13; Luke 4:1-13.

After fasting 40 days and 40 nights in the wilderness, Jesus was hungry. The tempter came to Him and said that if He really was the Son of God He could turn stones into bread. Jesus answered: "Man shall not live by bread alone."

Satan then took Him up to a high pinnacle of the temple in Jerusalem, and told Him to cast Himself down, for the angels of God would bear Him up. Jesus answered, "It is written, 'Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.'"

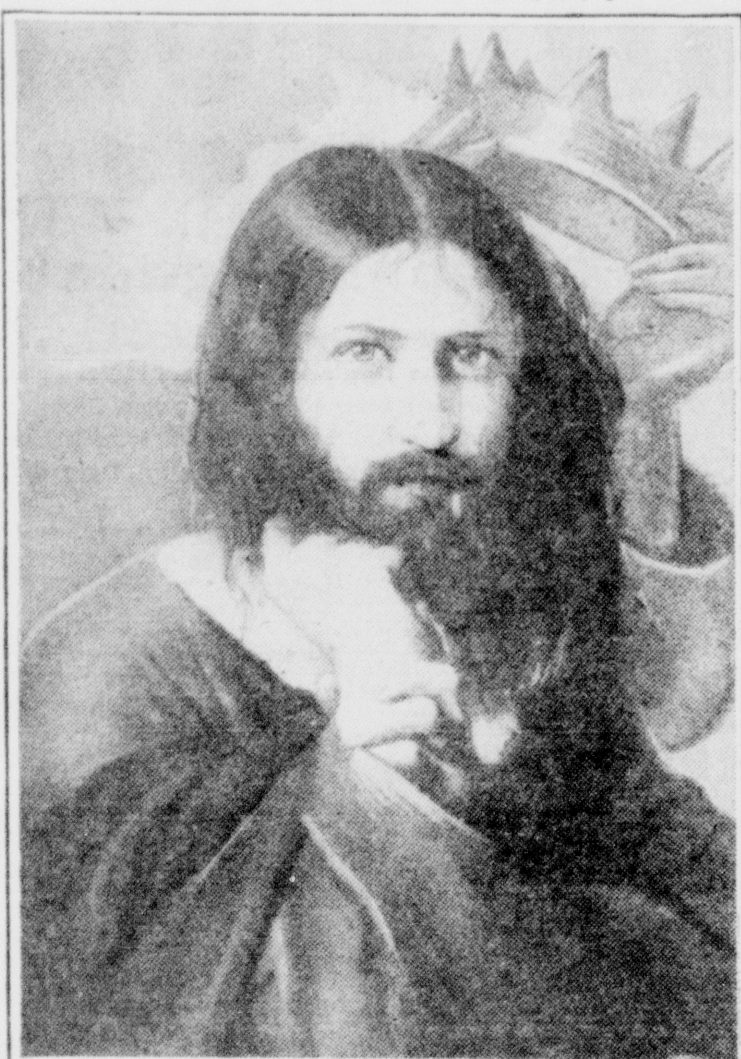

The Evil One then took our Lord up into a very high mountain and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world. "All these things will I give thee if thou wilt fall down and worship me," he said. Jesus answered, "Get thee hence, Satan."

"Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and Him only shalt thou serve," was Jesus' answer to Satan's third temptation, and realizing then that He could not be tempted, the Evil One left, and angels came and ministered unto Him. (GOLDEN TEXT—Heb. 4:15.)

The Temptation of Jesus

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON 1-24

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for January 25 is Matthew 4:1-11, Mark 1:12, 13, Luke 4:1-13, the Golden Text being Hebrews 4:15. "For we have . . . One that hath been in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin."

THE TEMPTATION of Jesus is thought to have taken place in the spring of A. D. 27. The place has never been definitely located, but it was in a wilderness, probably on the west side of the Jordan river, about eight miles or so from the place where He was baptized. Mount Quarantania rises 1,500 feet almost perpendicularly from the plain of Jordan, and it is here, according to tradition, that He was taken by Satan to see the world spread out at His feet. It is not important where the temptation did take place, however.

After His baptism by John the Baptist, Jesus retired to a quiet place to commune with Himself and His God before beginning His teaching and preaching. For 40 days and 40 nights He fasted, prayed and probably planned. At the end of that time He must have been weary and very hungry. And that was when temptation came to Him. Satan came to Him and knowing He was hungry, asked Him why He did not turn the stones at His feet into bread. If He really was the Son of God, and so satisfy His hunger Jesus answered by quoting Scripture, Deut. 8:3. "It is written, 'Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.'"

At this Satan left Him, where St. Mark tells us, wild beasts were with Him, but did not harm Him, and the angels of God came and ministered unto Him. We, too, are subject to temptations. Not often spectacular ones like those of our Lord, but every day many smaller ones nag at us to give way to them. How can we find strength to overcome them? Jesus told us how when He was here on earth. In the prayer He taught us we say, "Lead us not into temptation," meaning that we ask God not to allow us to come into the path of overpowering temptation. Again, toward the end of His life, He said, "Watch and pray," that we shall not fall into temptation.

These things can we do daily. And we can put the temptations that come to us right out of our minds. If we dwell on them, daily, with them, so to speak, it is much harder to win the battle for the right. We must turn our backs on them, say, as Jesus did, "Get thee hence, Satan."

pearing before the Lord, Satan suggested that Jesus cast Himself down, as it is written, "He shall give us angels to charge over Thee." On their hands shall they bear Thee up, lest haply Thou dash Thy foot against a stone." Even the Devil can quote scripture to his purpose, as the saying goes.

By such a miracle Jesus could accomplish His mission, Satan implied, as it is written, "He shall give us angels to charge over Thee." But the Lord said, "Again it is written, 'Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.'"

The third temptation was even more diabolical. Taking Him to an exceedingly high mountain, he showed Jesus "all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them."

"All these things will I give Thee, if Thou wilt fall down and worship me," Satan said. How many more mortals have faced this temptation—giving way to the lust for power and influence. But our Lord answered calmly, but it must have been with some heat, "Get thee hence, Satan, for it is written, 'Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and Him only shalt thou serve.'"

One of the simplest and most economical ways of getting good vitamin and mineral count in your daily "three squares" is to step up the serving of fruits.

Several fruits can be included in one meal.

Apricots are springing into popularity. Their gay color and delightful flavor make them blend nicely with other fruits or they may be served alone—fresh, stewed or canned. They contain a goodly amount of vitamin A as well as iron which is required for healthy blood.

Vitamin A is needed in diets to prevent night blindness, to give proper enamel formation on teeth and for general growth. It helps keep the body in trim, making it better able to resist attacks of germs and infections.

For a surprising finish for dinner inspection in a familiar design you can repeat with this tested recipe:

Victory Cup Cakes

1/2 cup sugar

2 eggs, beaten

1/2 cup chopped blanched almonds

1/2 cup sifted flour

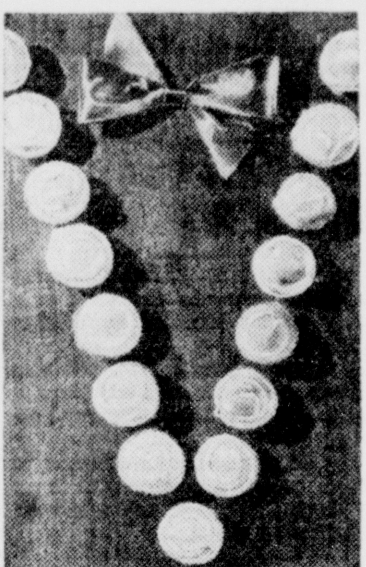

1/2 teaspoon salt

1 1/2 teaspoons all-phosphate baking powder

1/2 cup milk

Cream butter and sugar until light, add eggs. Add almonds and sifted dry ingredients alternately with the milk. Turn into small greased cup cake pans, top each with a split blanched almond (additional) and bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) about 20 minutes. Frost as desired.

you might serve apricot cobbler, oranges, grapefruit and tan-deep dish pie or dumplings. Apricot sauce does a lot for plain steamed or cottage pudding and it makes a grand dessert when spread on soft biscuit dough, rolled up and baked.

APRICOT SALAD: Stuff halves of apricots with cottage cheese mixed with diced celery, raisins, nuts and salad dressing. Chill, allow three per portion and serve on crisp lettuce. With a hot soup or chowder, whole wheat bread and butter and a rather substantial dessert, you have a meal well stocked with nutri-

Papayas, mangoes and prunes are

FRUIT PLATE: Arrange sec-

Use lemon juice for flavoring and

How Well Do You Know Your Asiatics?

To many a Western eye, Oriental faces are confoundingly alike. It is often hard to distinguish enemies (Japanese) from allies (Chinese). A Chinese newsman in Washington is wearing a penciled sign on his coat: "Chinese reporter, not Japanese—please!"

An American anthropologist says: "There is no infallible criterion to distinguish the two nations. Of an assorted 100, I believe I could pick 75 correctly." The type of Japanese most readily recognizable to him is the short, acrobatic type with bulgy muscles, a typical son of Nippon.

Pictured here are natives of seven Asiatic areas: India, Thailand, French Indo-China, Japan, The Philippines, China, Netherlands East Indies.

If you can identify five, you are well above average.

ALASKA: SOFT SPOT IN AMERICAN DEFENSE?

By SAM JACKSON
AP Feature Service Writer

Juneau, Alaska—In this vast but sparsely populated country, the layman can understand the realities of war and strategy to a degree that is impossible in the more complicated defenses of the United States proper.

As I sailed north just before the start of the war I could not help but worry about the possibilities the whole northwest seaboard offers for surprise enemy action—in fact, for just the type of sneak attack for which the Japanese now are notorious.

From the time your steamer leaves Seattle you thread through thousands of islands, all the way to Juneau. Besides the uncountable number of wooded land masses, bays, channels and obscure inlets seen on the four-day voyage, your map shows you there is a vastly greater number stretching seaward out of sight.

The simplicity with which an enemy could build up caches of supplies—perhaps substantial bases—in this island wilderness must have occurred also to the fisheries executive who stood beside me. He has been going back and forth to Alaska for 38 years.

"They try to tell us the Jap fishermen are keeping out of Alaskan waters," he snorted. "Well, take a look at this."

He pulled a snapshot from his pocket. It showed a ship—and it seemed to be a mighty big ship for fishing operations—with the WILDERNESS and hundreds of small islands surround Sitka on the Gulf of Alaska. This air view of a section of coast line indicates how an enemy power might establish secret bases.

Japanese flag painted on the side.

"It was taken just this summer by the skipper of one of our own vessels," he said.

I recalled the statement of a veteran Canadian newspaperman in Victoria, the island capital of British Columbia.

"We know the Japs have spies all along the Inside Passage," he told me. "But we know who they are and when the time comes, we'll clamp down on them."

A Good Sized Gun
Now and then the Alaska boat passes a trim, gray speedboat anchored at some narrow channel, so that all ships must pass close to it.

"That's nominally a Canadian fishery patrol," a ship's officer told me. "But you notice there's a good-sized gun mounted on the bow."

Just how thoroughly this vast tangle of islands is policed I don't know, and if I did, it could not be divulged. Even while we were at peace with Japan military authorities insisted on extreme secrecy as to details of Alaska defense.

Plans for Airport Project No. 3 Are Revised by W.P.A.

Changes Effected by Seibert and Rizer on Washington Advice

Revision in the plans for project No. 3 of the Cumberland municipal airport in Wiley Ford, W. Va., were announced yesterday by Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, following the receipt of orders from WPA officials in Washington, D. C.

Under the changed plans the project will include the grading of runways numbers two, three and four and the areas between; blacktopping of the landing strip of runway No. 3 and all drainage together with the necessary outlets, and the removal of excavation from a certain area which was to have been included in the development of No. 1 runway but was left remaining idle owing to the fact that if it was included the total amount of excavation would have exceeded the amount contracted for.

The project was worked up yesterday by J. H. Seibert, WPA assistant area engineer, Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, and members of the city engineering staff.

Rizer said that the City of Cumberland will pay five and seven-tenths per cent of the total cost of the project.

The city engineer stated that approximately ninety per cent of the draining system pipe of No. 1 runway has been installed.

Work of relocating the Welton road along the river is well under way and when completed will be hard surfaced, sixteen feet wide and will be one and one half miles in length. The road is being constructed in accordance with West Virginia State Roads specifications.

Approximately 400 men are now employed on the airport project, including seventy-seven men engaged in providing stone taken from the Greenpoint quarry.

Charges were preferred by Sergt. John H. Doud who arrested Roth January 17 at 11:11 p. m. on McMullen highway at the Celanese plant.

Party Fare Can Be Low-Cost

I want... FIGHTING DOLLARS

America must be strong. Every man and woman must contribute their strength to the strength of America at war.

Some are carrying guns—some are flying planes—some are giving their blood on ships at sea.

YOU on the home front must buy those guns—those planes—those ships. That must be your contribution to freedom under fire! BUY DEFENSE STAMPS AND BONDS TODAY—buy them with every penny you have to spare!

One economy measure a woman takes when food prices rise is to forego entertaining. The answer to that is—don't—instead, serve something simple and low-cost; a smart suggestion is brown bread and baked beans with a tossed green salad, fruit bowl or baked apples and coffee. Then you can inform the guests they are being served a repast loaded with health and pep; for there is iron in the beans, still more iron in the molasses used in both beans and bread, other minerals and plenty of vitamins in salad vegetables and fruit.

It is thrifty, too, to bake the beans in a large shallow pan as illustrated; they bake in less time and you can use a moderately slow oven, or a temperature of 325 to 350 degrees F.; use a recipe for baked brown bread instead of steamed also; and if you wish, bake the apples. It costs so little to bake when there's a modern gas range in the kitchen, for its oven heat control regulates the burner and maintains the desired temperature exactly on the very minimum of fuel while distributing heat evenly throughout the oven.

B. & O. Railroad Does Its Part in Defense Program

Demand for Steel Cars Keeps Shop Busy at Keyser

All Available Cars Put in Order; 33,500 Pounds of Steel in Cab Body

Railroads are playing an important part in the national defense program today and the Baltimore and Ohio is repairing and rebuilding every possible car it can get its hands on, according to John Edwards, Jr., superintendent of the Cumberland division.

A visit to the Keyser, W. Va., car shop and round house these days is ample proof of this statement.

There men of long experience with the railroad company, some of whom have rounded out as many as forty years' service, are engaged in general repair work or are employed rebuilding steel cars used in hauling coal and other materials to large industrial plants in all sections of the country.

Repairs Designated

The bulletin board at Keyser yesterday gave an idea of the work now in progress at the West Virginia car shops. It showed that ninety cars were undergoing repairs, 126 cars were waiting spot repairs, 167 cars were slated for light repairs and ninety-four cars are undergoing light heavy repairs. The board also revealed that no cars are awaiting condemnation.

Edwards explained that 512 men are employed in the Keyser car department alone. They are divided into eight units of fifty men to a unit. The figure includes 112 men in the operating force.

Built 750 Steel Cars

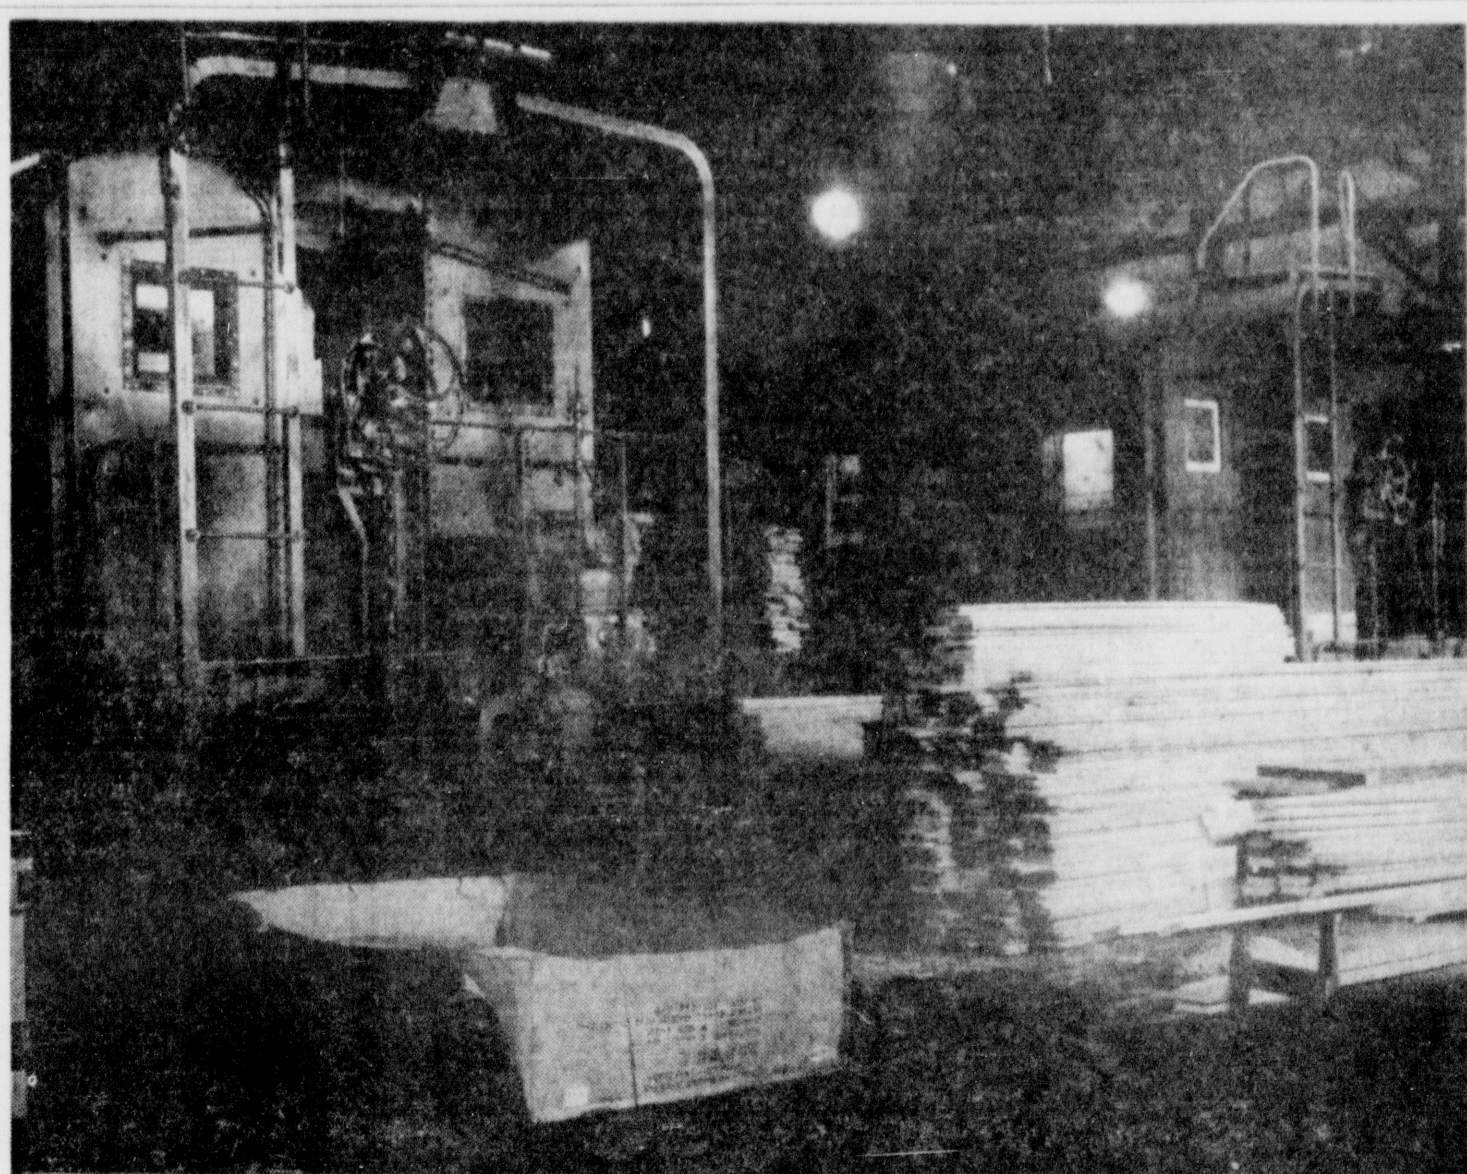

Prior to the start of the present caboose building program, a total of 750 all steel covered wagon type box cars of 100,000 pounds capacity and of the M-33 class were constructed at the Keyser shops. This program started in the spring of 1941 and new cars were turned out at the rate of five a day until the order of 750 was completed last September. While the steel box car construction program was in progress, repairs to other steel cars brought in off the road was also being done.

Construction of 100 bay window type steel cabooses and general repairs to steel hoppers and old type cabooses are made at the Keyser car shop which is 600 feet long, eighty feet wide and contains four tracks. This shop was built in 1902 and during the first World war in 1917 and 1919 a force of 1,000 persons was employed there. At the same time 400 men were employed at the Keyser round house. That's when the Keyser yard was in operation.

4,200 Rivets in One Cab

Frank J. Crockett, superintendent of the Keyser shops, says that a total of 4,200 rivets are used in the construction of the body of a new bay window type caboose. Each body contains 33,500 pounds of steel and the caboose when turned out of the car shop weighs approximately 40,000 pounds or twenty tons.

Among the innovations in the make-up of the new cab are a cast steel truck side frame, approved by the American Railroad Association; a Duryea cushion underframe which enables the body and frame to slide as two separate units, thus avoiding any shock to members of the crew; and an Equipco hand brake which occupies a position on AWAIT FINAL TOUCHES—Pictured here are the eighty-third and eighty-fourth of an order of 100 bay window type cabooses awaiting the finishing touches in the B. & O. round house at Keyser, W. Va. The cardboard box in the foreground contains large sheets of special fiberglass which is used for insulating the cabs while the lumber on the right is used as a lining to cover the fiberglass. The interior of each cab is finished in a buff colored paint. The cabs are fully equipped with furniture, window glasses and are given three coats of paint in the round house. The painting job consists of a coat of red lead, a coat of Venetian lead as a primer and a top coat of devil red. The wheel on the rear of the caboose is the Equipco hand brake, one of the many new features of the latest type railroad cabooses. Note the stove on the platform of the cab on the left. Stoves of this type are standard equipment for each of the cabooses turned out of the Keyser shops.

CUPOLA DISAPPEARS—In place of the cupola or cock lofts as used on the conventional caboose for observation purposes, bay windows are built into the sides of the new cabooses now being produced at the B. & O. shops in Keyser, giving the crew a better view of the side and lower parts of the moving train for the detection of any defective part. Above is one of the new jobs after being turned out of the car shop. It will be fully equipped with windows, furniture and other necessities and painted in the round house before being placed in service on the road. Improvements for the crew's comfort include Pullman-like sleeping sections in the bay windows which are easily converted into tables and seats at daytime so that the crew can handle reports while viewing the train and track. New safety features include raised grab irons at the top of the ladder in the rear. A Duryea cushion underframe takes up the shock of the train ahead with the body sliding under the frame of the cab as a separate unit. A cast steel truck side frame, also something new on cabooses, is approved by the American Railroad Association.

INTERIOR OF CAB—Judging from the appearance of the interior of the new cabooses being built from the ground up at the Keyser shops, railroaders will certainly enjoy many comforts of home when they travel in these cars. Each cab contains two permanent bunks, two collapsible bunks, built on the same principal as the Pullman car, a stove, coal bin, ice box, water cooler, porcelain wash basin, writing table, two metal lockers and many other conveniences. The above photo shows Frank J. Crockett, superintendent of the Keyser shops, seated at the table which can be replaced by a leather cushion and the double seats converted into a bunk. Note the lockers on the left and the stove pipe, water tank and collapsible bunk on the right. Each caboose has a double floor with a layer of tar paper to insure warmth. The side walls, front and rear of each cab is lined with a one and one-half inch layer of special fiberglass insulation and is covered with yellow pine painted buff. Other interior features are a conductor's valve which regulates brakes on the train and a safety rail running through the middle of the car which crew members can grab in event of a sudden jolt.

ARMY OFFICERS WILL CONDUCT TESTS HERE FOR AVIATION CADETS

Young men eligible for service with the United States Army Air Corps as aviation cadets will be given the opportunity to enlist in that select branch Friday, January 30, when a corps of army medical officers and technicians will visit the local recruiting office to examine applicants. It was announced last night by Staff Sgt. Clarence Biehn, recruiter.

Requirements for this branch of the army have been lowered and if a man passes the strict physical test and is able to make a passing mark in the aptitude test which now takes the place of educational requirements formerly necessary he will be enrolled in the air corps as an aviation cadet, Sgt. Biehn added. Two men enlisted yesterday in the army of the United States assigned. They are Russell L. Reeves and Elmer D. Grove, both of Westport.

Suspended Sentences Are Given Two Youths

Suspended sentences of three months in the county jail were given to two local youths in trial magistrates court yesterday following a hearing before Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., on a charge of unauthorized use of an automobile. One of the young men enlisted in the United States Army at the local recruiting station yesterday afternoon.

Bernard Bucy, Ridgedale avenue, and Ernest Delawder, Bradock, road, were charged with taking the car of Dr. William A. Gracie from in front of his home last month and abandoning it following a collision with a bakery truck in Frostburg. The young men were arrested Thursday by detectives R. Emmett Flynn and James J. Condon.

Bible Conference Will Be Held at Cresaptown

Calvary Tabernacle at Cresaptown has arranged a Bible conference for Saturday and Sunday with the Rev. F. L. Holden, professor of Bible Prophecy and Old Testament History at the Practical Bible Training school, Binghamton, N. Y., teaching.

Services will be held tonight at 7:30 and at 10:45 and 7:30 Sunday. All three will be of a prophetic nature and deal with timely subjects. Sunday night the subject will be "Is Japan in Bible Prophecy?"

Will of Jane Duncan Admitted to Probate

The last will and testament of Jane Duncan, of Midlothian, was admitted to probate yesterday in orphans' court. A daughter, Flora Duncan, is named principal beneficiary and a son, Hugh Duncan, placed in charge of a trust for the residue of the estate for a five-year period.

At the end of the five-year period the trust is to be liquidated and the monies distributed among her children. Hugh Duncan is named executor.

Aircraft Observers And Volunteers Will Meet Here Tomorrow

Chief observer of the ten aircraft observation posts, supervised by Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, and volunteers for the service, are requested to attend a meeting tomorrow at 4 p. m., in the American Legion home, Harrison street.

Numerous inquiries have been received this week from persons desiring to volunteer for the plane "spotters" service. Those and others wishing to sign up are urged to attend the meeting.

Assurance is given by Claude L. Deal, organizer of the aircraft observation posts, that volunteer will be assigned to posts nearest their homes.

CARRIES THE TORCH—Welders are important persons in a railroad repair shop and this fellow hard at work with his acetylene torch is shown burning away the frame of a coupler on a steel coal hopper which is being rebuilt in the B. & O. car shop at Keyser. The bulletin board at the shop shows that ninety cars are undergoing repairs, 126 await spot repairs, 167 light repairs and ninety-four light heavy repairs. No cars are awaiting condemnation. Due to the national defense program and the fact that traffic is reaching its largest volume in railroad history, the B. & O. is repairing every possible car on which it can get its hands. Five hundred men are employed in the car department in Keyser in the spacious shop 600 feet long and eighty feet wide containing four tracks. Before the caboose building program got underway 750 covered wagon type all steel box cars of 100,000 pounds capacity, were constructed at Keyser. This project opened in the spring and was concluded in September, 1941.

RIVETERS AT WORK—It takes 4,200 steel rivets for the construction of one of the new bay window type cabooses now being built at the B. & O. shops in Keyser, W. Va. Gangs of three men each are employed at this kind of work. Shown above on the platform of the cab under construction is the hammer man while inside the cab is the hammer man. Standing on the ground is the heater, who supplies the white hot rivets which are used in sealing the steel plates together. An oil burning forge in which the rivets are heated is shown in the right foreground. These men work a six-day, forty-eight hour week. The hammer man or mechanic is paid eighty-eight cents an hour while the heater and bucker, classified as helpers, receive seventy-two cents an hour. Each caboose when completed weighs approximately 40,000 pounds or twenty tons, including 33,500 pounds of steel used in body construction. Employees at the Keyser car shops are members of Local 558, Brotherhood of Carmen of America, of which Wallace Clark is president.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX No. 18

Exemptions Allowed Couples Married During Taxable Year

The credit for dependents as well as the personal exemption is required to be prorated where a change of status occurs during the taxable year, except where the taxpayer is eligible and elects to compute the tax at the optional rates with the use of the simplified Form 1040A, and these credits are allowable not only for the purpose of computing the normal tax but also be surtax. The proration is to be made in accordance with the number of months the taxpayer occupied each status, and fractional part of a month is to be disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month in which case it is considered a month.

For example, if a single man and a single woman were married on July 20, 1941, and lived together during the remainder of the year, they would be entitled to a personal exemption of $1,500 in a joint return on Form 1040 for the calendar year 1941, which amount is seven-twelfths of $750 for the husband while single, plus seven-twelfths of $750 for the wife, while single, plus five-twelfths of $1,500 for the period during which they were married. If during the year 1941 the husband or the wife had the status of the head of a family prior to their marriage, he or she would be entitled to his or her pro rata share of the personal exemption of $1,500.

allowed the head of a family for the period prior to their marriage instead of that allowed a single person. For the period of their marriage and exemption to which either might be entitled as the head of a family would be merged in the joint personal exemption. The joint personal exemption allowable in the case of a couple who were married and living together during the entire year may not exceed $1,500.

If a child under 18 years of age reaches the age of 18 years during the taxable year, the credit of $400 is required to be prorated in the same manner as the personal exemption. For example, should the child's eighteenth birthday fall on June 30, the parent would be entitled to claim $200 credit for the dependent child—that is, one-half of $400. The same rule applies to other dependents where a change of status occurs during the taxable year.

If the tax is computed at the optional rates with the use of the simplified Form 1040A, the taxpayer's status on the last day of the taxable year governs the determination of whether a person is living with husband or wife, is the head of a family, or is a dependent.

The class will receive thirty hours training and those completing the course will be given an instructor's certificate. The class is not confined to those connected with the coal industry but is open to men and women over sixteen who are interested.

Intensive training will start in all the towns of the Georges Creek region immediately following the completion of the instructors' class. Additional information will be given through the newspapers or at the Frostburg Control Center.

Hold Air Raid Drill

St. Michael's parochial school, this city, held its first air raid drill Thursday, about 11:45 a. m., in the presence of the Rev. Patrick J. Bradley, pastor of St. Michael's church; the Rev. Francis E. Montgomery, assistant pastor; Earl M. Kerr, chief of air raid warden, and John Manley principal of Hill Street school.

According to Kerr, the children moved from their usual places in the school rooms to a designated part of the building, or shelter, in an orderly fashion and without any confusion. They also grouped themselves in positions as instructed, with their hands protecting their heads.

The practice drill was signalized by a warning signal. Kerr said he did not time the drill, but that it was done in a most satisfactory manner.

Similar drills were held at Hill Street and Beal elementary schools during the past week, the one at Hill Street being done in an exceptional manner under direction of Principal Manley.

The monthly parties of the Hill Street, pre-school, a WPA project, were held Thursday, January 22. The morning party was held in charge of Mrs. Nevin Bittler, Mrs. William Liverswood and Mrs. Peter Whitstone of the mothers' group.

Rotarians Sponsor Contest

The Frostburg Rotary Club is sponsoring two contests. One is open to the public and members of the club. The club is in need of a song that may be called the club's theme song and it is offering a $5 prize to the composer of the most acceptable song. The rules of the contest are as follows: The words must be original, the tune may be original, at least it must not involve copyright difficulties. Entries are to be submitted to B. H. McCrackin, 64 Frost avenue, on or before February 16. All songs submitted become the property of the club. Announcement of the winner will be made one week later.

The second contest will be an essay of not more than five hundred words on the Frostburg Rotary Club, developing two ideas—what its meaning to Frostburg—and what the club should do for the area it serves. The contest will be of two groups—an adult group and a high school group. A $5 prize will be awarded to the winner in each group.

The rules of the contest are: Contestants must reside in the area served by the club. Members of the Rotary Club and ex-members are not eligible. Use letter size paper on one side only, either longhand or typewritten. All papers submitted become the property of the Rotary Club. Papers are to be delivered to H. H. Second semester provides an opportunity, college officials say, for those who are interested in preparing for defense services and particularly for teachers to complete their qualifications.

Students interested in this college work are being urged to contact President John L. Dunkle to make arrangements to begin work at the opening of the second semester.

With reference to the present status of the teaching profession in Maryland, President Dunkle outlines the situation today as follows:

"According to a survey made in the counties of Maryland more than 300 elementary teachers will be needed to staff the schools in September. This shortage is due to a number of factors. The counties around Baltimore and Washington have had a large increase in population due to the influx of defense workers. The draft has taken many young men from the profession and in addition many teachers have left for defense services.

The teachers college will soon announce the details of a speed-up plan which will make it possible for the local college to make its contribution to its students and to the staffing of schools in Maryland.

Victory Book Drive Will Be Sponsored In Oakland

Campaign To Secure Literature for Service Men Ends Feb. 4

OAKLAND, Jan. 23.—Garrett county will co-operate in another nation-wide movement—a victory book campaign of the American Library Association, the American Red Cross and the United Service Organizations for National Defense, Inc.

The primary purpose is to collect reading matter for service men to supplement the library services provided by the government.

At a meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club the organization voted to sponsor the campaign in the county and the drive is already under way.

Miss Crystal Elliott was appointed county-wide chairman and the following have been appointed chairmen of their communities:

Mrs. Claudine Friend, Friendsville; Miss Ethel Broadwater, Grantsville; Miss Dora Schloessner, Accident; Miss Margaret Koehender, Kitzmiller; Asa Lewis, Kempton; Mrs. Lester Yutzy, Creolin; Mrs. E. C. Clatterbuck, Deer Park; Mrs. Margaret Berghau, Mt. Lake Park; and Miss Mary O'Donnell, Loch Lynn Heights.

F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, has given permission for schools to be used as depositories for books collected, and the books can be brought to the schools on school buses. Principals of the schools are being asked to co-operate with the chairmen in their locality.

Garrett county's quota is 1,600 books. The drive is to end February 4. Good books are needed. Fiction, popular books on travel, history, biography, plays, poems, essays, books on science, technology, vocations and up-to-date reference works.

Drilling Stops

After more than a year crews of men employed by a company in drilling operations near Accident in an effort to discover oil or gas in that community, decided to abandon the well and cease operations.

The drill had reached a depth of 8,350 feet when the tools became fastened found impossible to release them. While a slight supply of gas was struck at a depth of several hundred feet, this was piped off by the casing.

Workmen are now engaged in pulling the casing from the hole. Later the derrick will be taken down and the machinery stored.

It was also learned that the corporation is retaining leases on approximately 600 acres of property in the area, but were returning the leases to owners of the land on the remainder held under option.

Voters To Register

The city's registration of voters will take place Monday, January 26.

The registration is only for those who have not previously registered. Following the registration day in 1941 there were 478 persons eligible to vote at municipal elections. The registration of voters in Oakland is required by an Act of the Legislature, passed in 1939.

The city hall will be open to receive new registrants from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m. The annual city election is held in March.

To Present Service Jewels

Presentations of fifty-year and twenty-five year jewels will be an important feature of the fifty-third anniversary celebration of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, Friday, February 20, according to W. W. Dawson, chairman of the program committee.

Dawson said plans for the occasion were shaping up nicely. Joseph E. Harried, local druggist and author of "Wild Flowers of the Alleghenies," has been a member of the Pythian organization for fifty years, the records show, and he will receive his fifty-year jewel at the climax of the celebration.

The committee also announced that twenty-five year jewels would be presented to several members and that the names of recipients will be announced later.

Stocks Have Dull Day, but List Closes with Gains Up to 2 Points

Rails Open Weak, but Close Strong; Erie Votes Dividend

By BERNARD S. O'HARA
NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—The stock market merely drifted during the greater part of today's session but managed to close with slightly steadier tendencies.

Rails, down most of the time, did better at the last and a handful of "blue chips" which recently have been under pressure managed to tack on 1 to 2 points or so. Minor fractional losses were plentiful.

Dealings were exceptionally sluggish until the final hour.

Transfers totalled 431,250 shares compared with 429,670 Thursday.

War news from the southwestern Pacific still was far from convincing marketwise. Fairly constructive business developments still had to contend with tax doubts.

Erie Votes Dividend
Erie preferred "A" moved up a fraction when a $5 dividend on this new issue was declared payable in four quarterly installments. Wabash preferred was up 1 1/4 at a new 1941-42 top. Santa Fe edged forward along with N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern and Northern Pacific.

General steel castings preferred advanced 2 and Westinghouse was up 2 1/4. Du Pont, Eastman Kodak and United States Gypsum acquired about a point each.

In arrears were Bethlehem Steel, Goodyear, United States Rubber preferred, Caterpillar Tractor, American Telephone, Western Union, Chesapeake & Ohio, Kennecott, American Can, Dow Chemical, United Aircraft, Johns-Manville and Phillips Petroleum. Procter & Gamble was up 1 1/4 at a new low for the past year.

Curb Shares Gain
In the Curb modest plus signs were attached to American Gas, Brewster Aero, Electric Bond & Share and Glen Alden Coal. Lower were Humble Oil and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore. Volume here approximated 63,000 shares versus 78,000 yesterday.

Low-priced railroad loans continued to pace a generally rising bond market.

Trading expanded to $11,508,100, par value, from $10,780,800 on Thursday with a substantial portion of the turnover again centered in a group of rails.

United States governments showed little change either way.

Newest "Tarzan" Film At Embassy Tomorrow

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer celebrates the twenty-fifth anniversary of the filming of the first "Tarzan" picture with the release of "Tarzan's Secret Treasure," which opens tomorrow on the Embassy screen with Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan once again playing their established roles of Tarzan and his mate, and little Johnny Sheffield again cast as "Boy," their adopted son, first introduced in "Tarzan Finds a Son".

The now famous Tarzan jungle adventures were born of the idea of Edgar Rice Burroughs that a modern folklore could be built on the Romulus and Remus myth. Twenty-five million Tarzan books have been sold, translated into fifty-six languages. They founded an elaborate industry including a newspaper comic strip, national radio broadcast, and the Tarzan motion pictures which, like the book, are rated as "best sellers."

Motion pictures early recognized the Tarzan stories. In 1932 Irving G. Thalberg, then production head of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, decided that a Tarzan picture, with characters talking and with all the wild animal sounds and jungle noises, would make an excellent adventure story. After considerable search for an athlete suitable for the character, Johnny Weissmuller was tested and signed. So firmly has the identity of Tarzan been wound about him since then that thousands of people think of him only as Tarzan.

Water Ballet Is Movie Highlight

Fun's fun, but a person can't laugh all the time! That's the reason Olsen and Johnson insisted on at least one sequence in their picture, "Hellzapoppin'," where guns don't shoot, animals don't run riot over the set and where stogees are not subjected to various pranks.

The picture, a Mayfair production Presented by Universal, is currently playing at the Strand theater. The one rare moment of quiet in "Hellzapoppin'" is a water ballet which takes place in the swimming pool of a lavish garden set, said to have cost a cool $45,000.

Olive Hatch, former Olympic and A.A.U. champion, created the spectacular and beautiful formations, using two-score of Hollywood's most curvaceous bathing beauties, Miss Hatch declared:

"With the impetus that has been given swimming in Billy Rose's Aquacade in New York, plus what Hollywood is doing on the screen, I think it likely that swimming may zoom to new heights of popularity the way ice skating did because of Sonja Henie."

Bogart Right at Home In Racketeer Portrayal

Humphrey Bogart, after an interlude of running a circus and being a detective, is right at home again in his portrayal of a New York racketeer and gambler who leads gaudy in a battle against the Gestapo in Warner Brothers' "All Through the Night," which is currently showing at the Liberty.

The first scene of the picture has the camera focused on a table where miniature soldiers, tanks, armored cars, machine guns, artillery, and aeroplane bases are situated. A hand is pointing to various positions on the battle field and voices are discussing the "battle" in highly serious tones.

As the camera pans back, the setting is seen to be, not a meeting of the general staff in Washington, but a back room of Charlie's Broadway Grill. The Monday morning military quarterbacks are a group of tough-looking men headed by Bogart, Jackie Gleason, Frank McHugh, and William Demarest. The waiter, played by Phil Silvers, is just kibitzing.

Bogart says, "If we start our encirclement in this sector and maneuver the enemy troops out of the central defense line, the counter-attack must be successful."

McHugh pipes up, "That stinks," he says, conclusively.

Demarest takes over, "Now here are the Nasties. So what have they got—tanks. So what's a tank? In 1920 they used 'em in Chicago—armored cars."

"The layout is a cinch. Remember how Willie's mob moved down those west side boys? That's how the British should play it. Those gorillas ain't so tough."

As the argument becomes more intense, the battle lines spread all over the table cloth.

Bogart interrupts, "Let Wash-

New Team Romances In Leon Errol Film

Making their bow as a new romantic team, lovely Mildred Coles and Kenneth Howell appear in support of Leon Errol in the comedian's current RKO Radio feature, "Hurry, Charlie, Hurry," now at the Garden.

Acclaimed one of Hollywood's most beautiful players, Miss Coles recently scored as the ingenue lead in "Play Girl." Howell will best be remembered as the elder son in the well known "Jones Family" pictures.

The co-feature at the Garden is Zane Grey's "Last of the Duane," a western starring George Montgomery and Lynn Roberts.

Robert Taylor Times Kayo Punch Perfectly

Knocking out a glamour girl is a problem of timing.

At least it took careful timing on the part of Robert Taylor to follow the script in "Johnny Eager," his first co-starring picture with Lana Turner, currently appearing on the Maryland screen.

The story called for him to plant a solid right cross on Lana's chin because she refused to leave him at the curb of a big city street when Taylor was engaging in a gun fight with rival racketeers.

As she fell, out like a light, Taylor was to further insure her safety by catching her before she hit the pavement and then toss her into an open roadster driven by one of her friends who would speed her to security.

"Who do I practice on?" inquired Taylor of Director Mervyn LeRoy.

Taylor's companion and already the victim of his fistcuffs, volunteered. On the first rehearsal, Heflin didn't fall fast enough, and on the second he fell too fast, hitting the pavement before Taylor could grasp him. But the third was the charm and LeRoy was satisfied.

Miss Turner was called from her dressing room. "The director told her not to worry that everything had been worked out perfectly for her to be knocked out with dispatch and little effort. Just act natural," he advised.

She did. Taylor swung and she collapsed. He caught her just before she hit the street, tossed her

DANCERS

Please Note!

During the month of December a group of dancers known as The Winterettes were on the road touring theatres with a stage unit. Explorers Pound Baskets in Last Half for Eleventh Win in Row

After trailing at the half, Coach Pat Conway's LaSalle High Explorers turned on the heat in the last two periods to defeat Coach Bill Wahm's Ridgeley high courtmen 31-22 last night at Ridgeley, and remain in the undefeated ranks.

In marking up their eleventh straight triumph, the Explorers were led by George Geatz and big Johnny Small. Geatz found the hoops for ten points on four last-half field goals and two free throws, also coming in the last two periods, and Small banged in two double-doubles in each half and added three points at the free-throw ribbon for a total of eleven tallies.

Ridgeley got away fast and held a 7-3 edge at the quarter whistle. In the second round, LaSalle gathered seven points to Ridgeley's four and trailed by one marker at 11-10.

The third quarter proved Ridgeley's downfall as the Explorers dropped in fourteen points while holding the losers to eight for a 24-19 advantage going into the closing stanza. The Hahnmenn were able to garner only three points in the fourth chapter to LaSalle's seven.

Both teams snared four field goals in the first half with Ridgeley's Bob Washbaugh giving the Hahnmenn their edge at the intermission by caging three field goals. Washbaugh sparked the Ridgeleyites with a dozen points and was the game's top scorer. The lineups:

The SPORT TRAIL

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—(Wide World)—Items for the papers:

Andy Kerr of Colgate, co-coach of the East team in the East-West Shrine football game at New Orleans, calls attention to one of the most beneficial, yet generally overlooked, new rules of the past season—that permitting three balls to be used in a game.

Writing from Florida, where he has been drying out since that super-saturated affair of January 3, Kerr says:

"I believe such a thrilling game would not have been possible except for the rule permitting the use of three balls in rain and mud. The ball was changed on every play. Consequently a dry ball was always in play. There were thirty-nine passes thrown in the game, as many in the fourth quarter as in any other quarter."

Nancy Merkl, whose smiling photo might be captioned "Typical American High School Girl," was in town a couple of days ago in the interests of the infantile paralysis fund drive. Nancy is a buoyant, robust example of what can be done to counteract the effects of the crippling disease which strikes furtively and indiscriminately, and whose very mention brings cold chills.

The sun shines brightly for Nancy now, and to look at her you'd never guess the dark, tragic uncertainty behind her, such as the bleak day in Portland, Ore., eight years ago when a heart-broken mother, trying bravely to dam the tears and keep the choke from her voice, told the hand of her seven-year-old daughter and said:

"Nancy darling, you'll always be crippled. But don't you worry, honey. By the time you grow up women will be wearing long skirts again and it won't make any difference."

But women weren't wearing long skirts when Nancy grew up—15 is a grown-up age. Neither was Nancy destined to go through life a cripple.

She started swimming after her five months in bed. At first it was just a dog paddle. When she was nine she won her first race, a fifty-yard affair. At 11 she won a three-mile event. Today she holds the world 200-meter free style record and two national championships, and would be a cinch to be an Olympic champion were the games held.

Her right leg is about an inch smaller than her left, but you are not conscious of it. You are conscious only of a comely, vivacious young woman who is a glowing example of what can be done for the afflicted when you add to "the march of dimes."

Bob Harlow, the sage of Pinehurst, N. C., has received a gossip letter from Horton Smith, the ex-boy wonder of (1) Springfield, Mo.; (2) Joplin, Mo. (Pick one). Smith is making the winter tour with the golf pros, and his letter reads in part:

"The pros all have good times and apparently are untroubled about transportation. Quite a bit of talk about $3,500 first prize at Los Angeles and only fifteen money places. Most players would prefer $2,500 first and at least twenty places. This was my fourteenth playing here. Missed one year because of a broken arm.

The more I play the more I appreciate Pinehurst courses and conditions (plus). I got an ace while playing with Jimmy Thomson, Herman Barron and Artie Stebbins on the sixth hole. Made it with a No. 1 iron. The hole is about 215 yards. It was my sixth ace. It might seem coincidental, but I saw only one leaf bag other than my own since leaving Pinehurst. Out here many think closing the race tracks will mean more golf.

Allegany Teams Easily Conquer Bruce Outfits

Camper Five Wins 45-11, Blue and White Girls Score 42-19

Continuing their winning ways in the Western Maryland Interscholastic Basketball League, Coach Walter L. "Bill" Bowers' Allegany high cagers grabbed undisputed leadership of the loop by romping to an easy 45-11 victory over the hapless Bruce high hoopers of Westernport in the nightcap of a triple-header "Loyalty Night" program on the Campobello floor last night, for their third consecutive league triumph.

It was the fifth straight victory and the sixth in nine games this season for the Campers, who are the only undefeated hoopers in the W.M.I. while it was the seventh defeat in fourteen games for the Westernport quint and its second setback in three league contests.

Coach Mary Virginia Cooper's Blue and White girls gained a 42-19 decision over Bruce's sextet in the second tilt of the three-fold performance to also remain undefeated in the W.M.I. race, while the Allegany reserves, paced by Bob Lucas with ten tallies, topped a Boys' Hi-Y quint 39-10 in the preliminary engagement.

Lee Starts Parade

Donald "Lefty" Lee took a pass from Teammate Donald Dell on the tip-off and tallied under the basket in the opening seconds of play to begin hostilities in the boys' game and the Campers ran their advantage to 13-0 before Bill Gardner hoisted a foul loss with less than forty-five seconds remaining in the period for Westernport's first score. Lee again started the ball rolling for Allegany by hooping another close shot in the second period before Charles McGowan scored on a pivot shot for Bruce's initial twopointer with about five minutes in the half to play.

The Blue and White regulars ran the score to 21-5 before Bowers inserted his reserves who remained in to finish the contest. The subs more than held their own against the Westernport quint and the half ended 25-7 Allegany.

With the subs still in the lineup, Allegany continued to set a sizzling pace and outscored Bruce 9-1 in the third quarter to hold a 33-8 margin at the termination of the period.

Jack Crites and Jimmy Clower paced the Allegany crew in the final stanza as Coach "Chip" Grindle's Bruce courtmen were outplayed in all departments. The Campers held Bruce to three tallies in this quarter while hooping twelve markers themselves.

Edwards Paces Campers

John Edwards, lanky pivot man, was the scoring star for Allegany with six points, followed closely by Bill Williams who netted five. Altogether, Bowers used nineteen players in routing the Westernport team with fourteen entering the scoring column.

Bruce, held to four field goals, in each half, was paced by Gardner with one goal and three of four charity tosses for five markers. No 2 Bruce cager hooped more than one double-digger.

Ruth Pradicks led the Allegany girls with twenty-one points, on nine goals and three of five fouls as the Camper sextet stayed ahead all the way, leading 15-6, 23-11, and 38-14 at the quarters. Betty Everett paced the Westernport lassies with nine points on four twin-counters and one charity fling.

An added sidelight to the three basketball games on the "Loyalty Night" program found Leonard Happe defeating Bill Lloyd in finals of a ping-pong match which was staged between halves of the girls' contest. An exhibition boxing match between two young twin brothers, which was called a draw by the referee, was staged at intermission during the boys' game to round out a fine show for the large crowd of over 800 fans. Transportation Group For Cumberland Area Is Named by Gov. O'Connor

William M. Somerville, Local Attorney, Appointed Chairman; Group Will Coordinate Traffic Facilities; Regulatory Measures Needed To Obtain Fulllest Service, Chief Executive Declares

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP)—Governor O'Connor appointed seven members today to a Transportation committee to co-ordinate Cumberland's transportation facilities.

He named William M. Somerville, Cumberland attorney, committee chairman. Others appointed are John F. Rodman, of the Potomac Edison Company, Cumberland; William Porter, of Lonaconing, C. and W. Transit Company traffic manager; Walter E. Rinard, bus line operator of Mt. Savage.

Several Committees Represented
Ralph P. Lashley, bus line operator of Cumberland; C. O. Albright, Charles L. Kopp, county school superintendent of Cumberland; E. J. Thompson, school bus operators' representative of Cumberland; George A. Meyers of Lonaconing, president of the Celanese union and president of the Maryland and District of Columbia Industrial Union Council.

Harold A. Powell, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Shop Craft Union; John Edwards, Jr., of Cumberland, local B. & O. Railroad superintendent; William Claus of Cumberland, general manager of the C. and P. Railroad; Edward R. Allan of Cumberland, the Celanese corporation's personnel manager; R. M. Hudak of Cumberland, Kelly-Springfield Tire Company personnel manager; Raymond C. Burkhardt of Cumberland, president of the tire workers union; Harry J. Biggs of Westport, of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, Luke, Md., and George Carpenter of Westport, president of the Pulp and Paper Makers Union.

Regulatory Measures Needed
O'Connor said the recent transportation conference at Cumberland disclosed that facilities now available are adequate to handle the peak industrial travel but added:

"It was made most clear that regulatory measures would have to be evolved and co-operation of various groups enlisted if the transportation media of the section is to render the fullest service, not only to the industrial workers but to the school children and the general public. "Because of the industrial layout in Cumberland, and the fact that special attention must be given to the three largest employers, the Celanese corporation, the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad shops, I feel that the committee should be of sufficient size to afford representation to all the groups concerned."

O'Connor said he appointed Somerville chairman because "I felt that at the head of the committee should be someone who would be able to conduct hearings and direct investigations."

Salvation Army Obtains Place To Store Old Paper

Power House of Footer Plant Secured; Test Collection Is Planned

The power house of the Footer plant on South Mechanic street has been obtained for storage of waste paper, metal, P. and rubber, according to an announcement made yesterday by Brig. Brice L. Phillips, of the Salvation Army which is supervising collection in the Cumberland area.

Brig. Phillips said the paper would be baled here and shipped direct to a mill or broker. Any money left from sale of the paper, after meeting expenses, will be retained by the Salvation Army.

Persons can reach the storage room by turning off South Mechanic street at Howard. A large sign will be erected at the power house showing where to take the paper. The entrance is large enough to permit trucks to enter the building and unload. Some one will be on duty from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily with the exception of Sundays.

A test in organized collection will be made in three blocks in the city next week and if successful regular collection periods may be organized for various parts of the city, Brig. Phillips announced.

"Children have a chance to participate in the defense of their country by taking part in this program," stated Brig. Phillips. "We suggest they become 'paper guardians' in the home. They can save, sort and tie the packages."

He also appealed to stores and residents of nearby towns to bring their waste materials to the storage room.

The army is not buying any paper or other waste material. In most cases all the money obtained by the army from the sale will be needed to cover the cost of baling and shipping. Brig. Phillips said the campaign is for the purpose of collecting scrap metal, brass, copper and rags as well as paper.

HEADS COMMITTEE—William M. Somerville, prominent local attorney, yesterday was appointed by Governor Herbert O'Connor, as chairman of a Transportation committee which the governor named to co-ordinate Cumberland's transportation facilities. Somerville, informed by the NEWS last night of his selection, said he did not know when he would call a meeting of the committee, as it was the first information he had about the appointment, but indicated the group would meet soon. (See story this page.)

COMMITTEE HEAD—Edmund S. Burke, president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company here, was appointed chairman of a Defense Industries committee named Thursday by Governor Herbert O'Connor. The governor said the primary function of the committee would be to obtain enough war industry contracts to keep plants in the Cumberland area operating at full capacity. Burke announced last night that the first meeting of the committee would be held here this afternoon.

Legion Executive Group To Discuss Convention Plans

Committee of Ten Will Meet Monday Night at Legion Home

Plans for the Maryland Department American Legion convention, which will be held in Cumberland from Wednesday, August 26 to Saturday, August 29, inclusive, will be outlined at a meeting of the executive committee of Port Cumberland Post No. 13, Monday, January 26, at 7:30 p. m., at the Legion home.

Members of the executive committee are John R. Kelly, post commander, G. Ray Lippold, Humphrey Johnson, Russell Pauppe, Leo Reichert, Fred Walton, Heyl Walker, Fred A. Puderbaugh, Robert C. Bowers and Claude L. Deal.

Shows Rapid Growth

Commander Kelly yesterday said that the Legion convention has grown so rapidly in recent years that only four cities in the state are able to handle the event. They are Baltimore, Hagerstown, Ocean City and Cumberland.

Conventions are usually lost in Baltimore because the city is too big but places the size of Hagerstown and Cumberland are ideal spots for conventions of this type, Kelly declared.

Legionnaires attending the banquet Wednesday in Baltimore honoring Lynn U. Stambaugh, of Fargo, N. D., greeted the announcement that Cumberland was chosen for this year's convention and gave assurance that they will strive to make the 1942 event the biggest in the history of the department.

1940 Event Here Success

The consensus of opinion is that the 1940 Legion convention here climaxed the department event in Baltimore last year. Vincent P. Ingram was general chairman of the 1940 convention.

Auxiliary Police To Be Instructed

Emergency Measures Will Be Discussed at Police Station

Instructions in the duties of auxiliary police in times of emergency will begin today at 2 o'clock at police station for seventy-five of the men who volunteered for the service and were accepted by Oscar A. Eyerman, chief of police.

A second meeting was set for Sunday afternoon at the same time. "Only those notified to report on either day should come to headquarters," Eyerman said. Of the large number of men registered for the work, 152 volunteers were provided. A number of the applicants were turned down since the men lacked the necessary qualifications.

At least twenty-four hours of instructions will be given to the men and classes will include such subjects as first aid, gas and fire defense, drill in the prevention of sabotage of plants, guarding bridges, railroads and buildings, prevention of looting and patrol duty.

Volunteer policemen will be furnished with badges or arm bands, Eyerman added.

Mayor Irvine Pays First Visit to City Hall since Jan. 8

Mayor Harry Irvine yesterday paid his first visit to city hall since Thursday, January 8, two days before he was taken to the Memorial hospital where he remained a patient until Wednesday, January 21.

Friends were on hand to greet the city's chief executive as he arrived at his office and remained for an hour and a half before returning home.

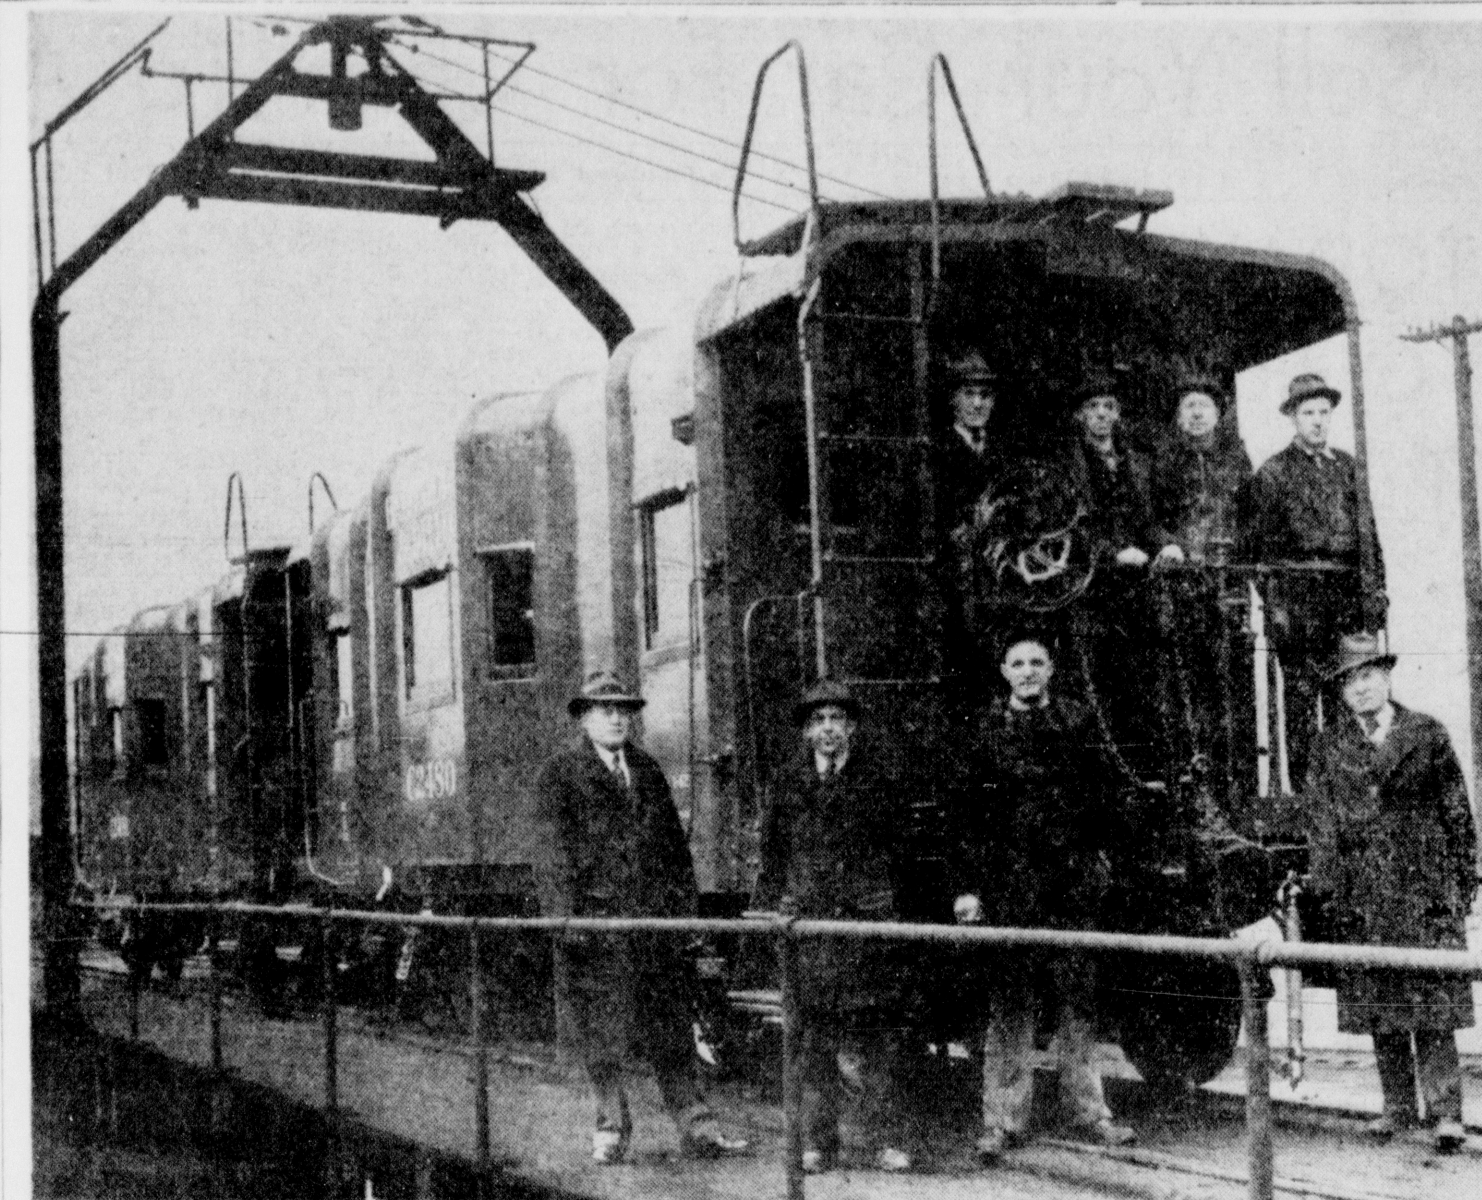

The mayor lost considerable weight during his recent illness but he told friends that he is feeling "pretty good."

Defense Industries Committee Will Meet Here Today

The first meeting of the Defense Industries committee, appointed Thursday by Governor O'Connor, will be held today at 4 p. m. in the law offices of Attorney General William C. Walsh, member of the committee.

Edmund S. Burke, chairman of the committee, and president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company announced last night. Burke said no definite subjects have been selected for discussion and said the meeting would in all probability be devoted primarily to organization of the committee.

Other members, in addition to Burke and Walsh, are Fred T. Small, plant manager of the Celanese Corporation; George A. Meyers, president of the Maryland and District of Columbia CIO and Isaac Hirsch, bank director and hide dealer.

NEW CABOOS READY—Members of the B. & O. official family are pictured with the eighty-first and eighty-second out of an order of 100 new bay window type cabooses as the new cars are moved onto the turntable at the Keyser round house prior to being inducted into regular service. An average of two caboos each working day, or an output of twelve a week, was the record established as of yesterday. Attorney General Speaks to Red Cross Workers

Plans Discussed To Give Impetus To Drive for War Relief Campaign

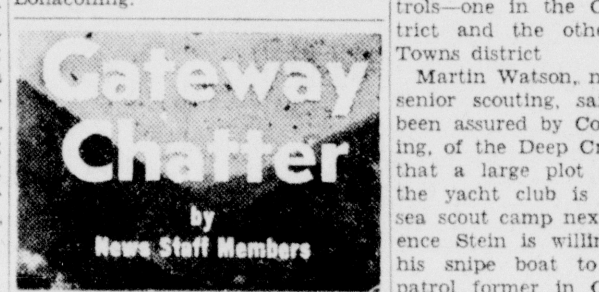

Attorney General William C. Walsh spoke before leaders in the Red Cross war relief fund campaign for Allegheny county yesterday at the post office.

Walsh and the campaign leaders from Cumberland and county towns reviewed the whole organization and then discussed means to give impetus to the drive in order to bring it to a successful close. John J. Stump, chairman, asked that all leaders contact campaign workers and stress the necessity of securing the money which is so badly needed to carry on the Red Cross work among soldiers and navy men.

Time and again the work being done by the Red Cross has been described to the public and no one has anything but praise for the organization, Walsh said, but it seems they will not bear in mind the urgent need for the money.

Further organizational work is planned by campaign leaders and it was indicated a personal solicitation plan was used in the Red Cross roll call drive will be used.

Besides Walsh, others attending were John J. Stump, Mrs. W. Lee Witherup, Frank L. Storm, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elias, Frostburg; Mrs. William Wilson, Mrs. William Somerville, Mrs. Mildred Kirkpatrick, Barton; Mrs. Robert Henderson, John P. McMullen, Mrs. Somerville Nicholson, George A. Meyers, Frederick Z. Hetzel, Miss Eleanor Sloan, Lonaconing.

Here are a couple of interesting questions a reader of this column sent in:

"Why do so many motorists keep their bright lights burning in the city limits? This is very annoying and not at all necessary, their dimmers would be sufficient driving around town."

The other is a tip to local theater managers which is really timely:

"Why don't the three 'big' movie houses publish daily in their advertisements, the time the feature will begin during the several shows. I don't believe this small extra printing would cost them any more and it would be a big help to movie goers and save many phone calls to theaters asking for this information."

If you haven't paid your 1941 auto tax, you had better do so by February 1 if you want to save (Continued on Page 6, Col. 4)

$24,774 Raised In Campaign To Save the Y.M.C.A.

Workers Are within Striking Distance of Goal; O'Connor Contributes

Despite many obstacles encountered, "Save the Y" campaign workers last night were within striking distance of their goal of $35,000 when reports from the various section leaders revealed a total of $24,774 has been raised.

Following a report from each section leader the total was only $15,024 and a momentary sadness pervaded the atmosphere. At this point Edmund S. Burke, general chairman for the drive, arose and gave a list of contributions he had received from some of the larger industrial plants and firms of Cumberland. An individual donation of $25 from Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor was announced.

Celanese Gives $7,500
Heading the list was a "whopping" donation of $7,500 from the Celanese Corporation of America. The Potomac Edison Company gave $1,000; the C. and P. Telephone Company $750; the Cumberland Brewing Company $500 and three sustaining memberships at $125 apiece; the Y.M.C.A. Ladies Auxiliary $1,000 and ten sustaining memberships.

Expressing himself as "immensely pleased" with the results so far, Burke urged the campaign workers to do their utmost before Tuesday to raise the last $10,000 and make Cumberland a city of which we can all be proud.

Besides the amount raised it was also announced that ninety-one sustaining memberships have been pledged and only sixty-nine more are needed under the plans worked out for the rehabilitation of the "Y" and its future operation.

Attorney General William C. Walsh addressed the workers preceding the report and he proved himself quite a "prophet" when he remarked that he expected to see the amount of contributions chalked up at the finish of the dinner come within the goal set.

Must Have Unity
"At a time when unity is the one thing we must have," Walsh declared, "it is imperative that the citizens of Cumberland forget any petty differences and work together to insure the continuance of this city's only institution of its kind."

Attorney General Walsh expressed himself as optimistic over the final results. "Cumberland never yet let any worthwhile cause fail for want of financial support," he concluded.

Hi-Y Members Speak
Three Cumberland youths, members of Hi-Y Clubs in the high schools, gave testimony as to the necessity for the "Y." Norman Barger in an eloquent talk told of what the "Y" with its athletic facilities and wholesome atmosphere meant to himself and his friends.

He said one of his fellow-students was at present staying at the "Y" because his parents had moved to Kentucky and the boy wanted to stay in Cumberland to finish his last year in high school. His parents were content with this arrangement because they knew he would be in "home-like" surroundings and well taken care of by the "Y" personnel.

B. & O. Railroad Builds Eighty-two Cabs in 41 Days At Keyser Shops

Order for 100 Bay Window Type Cabooses Will Be Completed by January 31

Turning out on an average of two cars a working day since early December, the Baltimore and Ohio railroad is gradually nearing completion of an order for 100 steel bay window type cabooses at its car shop and round house in Keyser, W. Va.

Pictures of the big caboose building program at the Keyser B. & O. shops and a story covering details of the steel car building program which has been in progress there appear on page 11 of this issue.

John Edwards, Jr., superintendent of the Cumberland division, yesterday announced that the eighty-first and eighty-second cabooses of the large order received last November were dispatched from the Keyser shops yesterday and placed in service. Work is being rushed to complete the remaining seventeen caboos by January 31—one week from today.

Work Started Nov. 10
Authorization for this new equipment was given last summer but construction was held up until November 10 when the work was started at Keyser in building the new caboos from the ground up. The delay was caused by difficulty in securing materials.

Frank J. Crockett, superintendent of the Keyser shops, said that the first new cabooses were turned out November 28 and over a period of forty-one working days the output has been eighty-two caboos.

Identification Numerals

Cabooses built at Keyser are identified as the Class I-12 and C-2400 series and carry the numerals from C-2400 to C-2499. More than eighty are now in the company's freight service and can be identified by the numbers already mentioned. Prior to the construction of the new caboos at Keyser, the Baltimore and Ohio railroad had 853 caboose cars in service. This figure will be increased to 953 with the addition of the latest cars.

The new cabooses have marked advantages from the viewpoint of operating efficiency and crew comfort. In place of the cupola or cock loft of the roof as used on the conventional caboose for observation, bay windows are built into the sides of the new cars and give the crew a better view of the side and lower parts of the moving train for the detection of any defective part.

Many Comforts for Crews

Improvements for the crew's comfort include Pullmanlike sleeping sections in the bay windows which are easily converted into tables and seats in the daytime so that the crew can handle reports while viewing the train and track.

Leo Kelly Acquitted Of Drunken Driving Charge by Jury

Defendant Claims 'Bump' Received in Crash Caused Loss of Memory

A circuit court jury deliberated only ten minutes yesterday afternoon before it returned a verdict of not guilty on the appeal of Leo Kelly, of Frostburg, from conviction in trial magistrates' court on a charge of drunken driving.

Kelly was involved in a collision with another car at the bottom of Red Hill on Route 40 Thanksgiving day. Edward J. Ryan, defense attorney, contended that Kelly was not drunk while driving his machine but that the terrific "bump" he received in the crash caused him to lose his memory.

State Police Testify
Paul M. Fletcher, assistant state's attorney, declared that the evidence given by Sgt. John H. Doud and Troopers Joseph White and Charles Mades, the arresting officer, was enough to prove that Kelly was intoxicated at the time of the collision and in addition the testimony of Dr. W. O. McLane, Jr., of Frostburg, who treated Kelly at the hospital, also substantiated the officer's statements that Kelly was intoxicated.

Several passing motorists who assisted in taking Kelly to the hospital after the crash testified they did not notice any odor of intoxicants on his breath. The wife of a roadside tavern keeper told the court that Kelly had drunk only one bottle of beer at the tavern before the crash occurred.

Lower Court Upheld

In the case of Samuel McFarland who took an appeal from a $100 fine imposed on him by Magistrate Roy S. Bowman, of Cresapton, on a charge of drunken driving, a jury upheld the finding of the lower court and found him guilty.
